HANDBALL CHAMPIONS AT FIRST GO!

NEWCASTLE University are the Handball Champions of British Universities. They won the Championship last term, and last week-end successfully defended their trophy in Edinburgh.

The winning trophy.

The game, introduced to the University last year, is very popular in Scandinavia, and seven large Norwegians squeezed into an 1100 and set off to do battle for the Heriot-Watt Trophy.

The tournament was arranged at Strathclyde University, and 5 teams took part. This was Newcastle's first match, and first victory, and seven student players returned with a large silver cup.

FRACTURED

Whereas all the other teams had substitutes, Newcastle had only their full team and so sometimes had to play for twenty-minute halves non-stop.

Last week-end, ten players went to Edinburgh to defend the trophy.

Seven teams were playing outdoors on two tennis courts, and as they were playing on fairmats, the players had rather a rough time. In fact one of the Newcastle team, Ebbert Poulsen, fractured his right foot in the game against Strathclyde.

Team: Knut, Waagene, Lars Fossum, Ebbert Poulsen, Harald Haring, Dag Nilson, Sivla, Edvard, Geir Edvard.

Handball is played on a pitch the size of a large tennis court. At each end there is a goal, about half the size of a soccer goal, or perhaps smaller. In front of this there is a semi-circle, from within which goals cannot be scored. There are seven players, including the goalkeeper, on the field at any time, but a team consists of ten players, who interchange every five minutes or so. A game usually lasts for two thirty-minute halves.

The ball, which is smaller than a football, and can be held in the hand, cannot be seconds, nor run with for more than three steps. It is, therefore, a very fast game.

Newcastle's team, however, is composed entirely of Norwegians. They feel that this makes handball in this University somewhat a minority sport.

Introducing exciting sport

HANDBALL CLUB SEEKS NEW ENTHUSIASTS — UNSKILLED

WHEN asking an Englishman what handball is, one is liable to get three or four suggestions, of which none is correct. It is to be concluded with great sadness that most Englishmen haven't the vaguest idea about the game. It is to be hoped that they all feel so offended by this insult that they will now read on with keen interest.

Handball is a game which has great popularity throughout the world, and it is gaining still more. The bulk of its support however comes from Europe. It is also played in Russia, Turkey, Iceland and even North-America. But in the very middle of this lies England, almost untouched by the charm of this fast game. This is a situation which handball enthusiasts aim to change, and it should be possible. The fact that the English are world-champions in football shows that England is full of ball-talent. A good footballer or basketball player will almost certainly be a good handballer.

Handball is a game which may be played indoors as well as outside, and by both sexes — give it a try, it might well be a game suiting your temperament and abilities.

TRAINING

Last year, Newcastle University Handball Club was started, and it is already recognised as a member of Athletics Union, which means a grant to cover expenses for gear and fixtures. The club is also a member of the British, and English Amateur Handball Association. Two tournaments were arranged last year, in which six different teams took part. The University Club won them both.

Today the club has around 40 members, from which are selected the 1st, 2nd and, if enough interest is shown, 3rd teams. Hence there is always a chance for you. Everyone is invited along to the training sessions, and will be given instruction if they go. You don't know the game? — so no skill is expected of you.

Training sessions are arranged weekly, starting October 23, 8.30 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Lightfoot Sports Centre, Wharrier Street, Walker (Bus No. 19 and 12). For further information, have a look at the notice-board in the Physical Education Department (later to be moved to the Union Foyer), or contact any of the Norwegian students. The club looks forward to seeing you enjoying the game.

Handball

Due to unfortunate circumstances the Handball Club did not get the intended start last term. Prior to the season, training had been planned to take place regularly, but had to be abandoned.

This term training sessions have been revived every Wednesday evening from 9-10.30 p.m. at Lightfoot Sports Centre.

Buses 12, 2, 19 to Wharrier Street (Walker). New and old members are welcome. One of the major aims of the club is the introduction of this sport to England.

Handball TROPHY RETAINED

1968

THE University Handball Club retained its British Universities Championship title in a tournament held in Newcastle on 2nd-3rd March. The tournament, which went down well, was held at the Lightfoot Sports Centre between six teams.

Newcastle were joint favourites with Sunderland Technical College. Heriot Watt University, Edinburgh, had a rather poor start in its first match on Saturday afternoon. Hopes for repeated success in the Cup were rapidly fading as the University, facing Glasgow, only managed to escape with a close 9-7 victory after a match marked by lack of self-confidence and precision in the team.

BRILLIANT

However, as the afternoon went by, Newcastle seemed to improve in every match, growing with the standard of their opponents. In the team's second match versus Heriot Watt, Newcastle lead all the way although winning only 9-7. Also Queens University, Belfast was later on held to a 9-7 victory, the match being clearer than the actual result suggests.

The last round on the Saturday included Sunderland against Newcastle. So far both teams had a clear three victory record. But Sunderland, having the better goal average, started favourites in this match so vital to the final outcome of the tournament. Newcastle, however, after getting a good start, seemed to settle down very easily, putting on by far the best performance of the tournament.

With this the cup was already more or less won and the next day Newcastle confirmed its strong position thrashing Strathclyde University, Glasgow, by 16-1. Sunderland came through to beat Queen's University by 7-5 to gain second place in tournament.

The final scoreboard was:

	P	W	D	L	Pts.
1 Newcastle U.	5	5	0	0	10
2 Sid. Tech. Col.	5	4	0	1	8
3 Q's Un., B'fat.	5	3	0	2	6
4 Heriot Watt U.	5	2	0	3	4
5 Strathclyde U.	5	1	0	4	2
6 Glasgow Uni.	5	0	0	5	0

The Handball Challenge Cup

1968

SECOND VICTORY

THE University Handball Club strengthened its good record of the season by beating Sunderland Technical College 27-25 last Wednesday. Sunderland seeking revenge for the defeat in the British University Championships, put on a good performance leading most of the match.

However, in the final minutes Newcastle, although lacking goalkeeper S. Torp, and centre forward S. Eidsgaard showed its better condition and came through to beat the by then very tired Sunderland team. Most of the Newcastle goals were put in by F. Aschim, K. Vaagnes and H. Harung, the latter having to move into centre forward position as the team was rearranged.

CHRISTMAS

This match served as a good conclusion of the season for the Handball Club having nine wins in 11 matches. The club, although having good results on the field, has not been able to get the game properly introduced in the University. This is due to a series of unfortunate circumstances, one being that we were unable to use Lightfoot Sports Centre all Christmas term. Also when training finally started, on Wednesday nights, a lot of people were tired after various games in the afternoon. Next season there is, however, a chance of hiring Lightfoot on Monday or Thursday nights in which case the possibilities should be better.

Good start

THE weekend 9th and 10th of November, the University handball team went to play a tournament in Glasgow, which proved to turn out surprisingly well for the Newcastle players—despite little training and the loss of three brilliant players last year.

The first opponents were the very strong, well playing Belfast team. We were beaten 13-10, which only reflects the lack of self confidence and the uncertainty amongst our players. In the second match the team showed but tricks of high standards, and beat the Herriot-Watt 2nd very easily 16-10. The victory being much clearer than the actual figures suggest.

SPIRIT

In the first match on Sunday morning, the Newcastle team showed up all its fighting spirit and managed a 15-12 victory over Strathclyde University. In the last match Glasgow University was thrashed 22-7.

In all respects a very promising weekend for the handball team.

The players were: Sturis Eidsgaard (captain), Knut Vaagnes, Dag Nilsen, Nils Arne Ottesen, Tor Ovrevik, Truls Johansen, Robert Jorgensen, Kjetil Svendsen and Bjarte Svenheim.

Newcomers are particularly welcome to join the club. Training sessions are arranged every Monday evening from 8.30-10.30 p.m. For further details see the handball notice board in the Union Foyer.

Handball

A team from the University competed in the Inter-University Championships held at Strathclyde on Saturday and Sunday, 9th and 10th November, against teams from Strathclyde, Heriot-Watt, Newcastle, Sunderland and Belfast. It is to the credit of the team in their first full season that they finished sixth out of eight vastly more experienced teams. Due to previous commitments the G.U. Team was under strength but played extremely well on the Saturday only losing after a great struggle to the eventual winners, Heriot-Watt. On Sunday the performance deteriorated slightly due partly to the loss of both Brian Fitzgerald and Steinhoff, who on the previous day had been the mainstay of the attack, and to an injury to the goal-keeper, Lindsay Pennycook.

The official British University Championships will be held in Glasgow during the second term, and provided that the University can field its full team then the prospect of finishing in the top three looks quite promising.

Practices are being held on Thursdays between 3.30 and 4.30 p.m. Everyone welcome.

HANDBALL COME GOOD

19 March

Last Saturday the University Handball Club rounded off a disappointingly quiet Epiphany term by a very convincing 22-14 win over Sunderland Technical College.

As usual the Newcastle team did not quite get going till the second half of the game. The first half ended with a 7-5 lead to Sunderland after a reasonably good performance by both teams. However there was never any doubt among the Newcastle players that they would win the match. From the very beginning of the second half they showed their superiority over the Sunderland players.

High speed matched with good technique gave as a result some moments of brilliant handball.

In the defence Per Shauman and Svein Jacobsen played very safe, and Tor Ounelik and Nils-Anne Ottosen had a number of really good shots.

As goalkeeper Grem Ottosen did a very good job, especially in the second half, Trabs Jahnsen and Robert Jorgensen played brilliantly as wings. Trabs had some startling jump-shots.

The players were: Sturla Eidsgaard (captain), Svein Jacobsen, Truls Jahnsen, Robert Jorgensen, Dag Nilsen, Orlen Olav Ottosen, Nils-Anne Ottosen, Peter Smedvig, Per Straumen, Tron Ourevik. (Apologies for bad spelling. — Sam).

GOOD START FOR HANDBALL

29 October

HANDBALL. THE week-end 18th-19th of October, the University Handball Club took part in the first tournament this term in Edinburgh. With a number of female supporters the trip turned out to be a success both socially and sportwise.

Eight teams took part and Newcastle finished after a number of good games. The eight teams were divided into two groups of four, and the two best teams of each group were to go onto the final matches. Newcastle came through very easily, and in the final matches on Sunday beat the very strong team from Queens University Belfast 9-4. The last match on Sunday finished in a 9-5 defeat by Heriot Watt, who won the competition. Despite the one defeat, this was a very good start for the Handball Club.

LIGHT FOOT

Two very good German players have joined the club this year. They are Jochem Thumma and Gunter Kalbacher. The other players were: Byorn Alveburg, Lars Grosted, Geir O. Ottosen, Peter Smedvig, Tor Ourevik, Sturla Eidsgaard. Training sessions are arranged at the Lightfoot Sports Centre, Wharrier Street, every Monday evening from 9 to 10.30 p.m. STURLA EIDSGAARD.

Newcastle do well

SATURDAY, November 13, the University Handball Club represented by 1st and 2nd teams, went to Edinburgh to play in Heriot Watt University's Challenge Cup. The teams participating came from all British universities where handball is practised, so the winning team is really one of the best in Britain.

On Saturday afternoon all teams played three matches each. Both Newcastle teams played well, and luckily both succeeded in qualifying for the semi-finals to be played next day. On Sunday Newcastle I met Newcastle II in the first semi-final.

MAN TRAP

Early in the match it looked like the well-playing 2nd team would win, but the stronger 1st team scored enough goals to qualify for the final. In the other semi-final Heriot Watt I beat Sunderland I so Sunderland I and Newcastle II were to fight for 3rd and 4th places.

Unfortunately Sunderland was the better team and won the match, with a few goals, but again Newcastle II impressed with good play. In the final Newcastle I met Heriot Watt I. Heriot Watt have won the cup nearly every year, and were big favourites this year as well.

MANS LAUGHTER

However, Newcastle I played their best match of the season and won easily 14-11. The victory was celebrated with a bottle of champagne, and more is to come in the near future—we hope.

Final results:

1. Newcastle I.
2. Heriot Watt I.
3. Sunderland I.
4. Newcastle II.
5. Strathclyde.
6. Heriot Watt II.
7. Sunderland II.
8. Queens, Belfast.

FINAL VICTORY

23 February
1972

The University Handball team has again proved its quality, this time by winning the "Geordie Cup," disposing of both the Great Britain 'A' and 'B' teams in the process.

The competition was held at the Lightfoot Sportstadium on February 12 and 13. After beating Sunderland Polytechnic 14-7 and the Great Britain 'B' team 9-7 on the Saturday, the University played Great Britain 'A' in the semi-finals on the Sunday. The team played their best match of the season, and ended up winning the match 10-6.

In the final the University faced Heriot-Watt University, and with only two minutes of the match left Heriot-Watt were leading 12-11. But Newcastle staged a tremendous comeback and scored two goals in the last minute to win the tournament.

The University 'B' team showed their strength by beating Sunderland Poly 8-7 in the play-off for fifth place.

HANDBALL

Thumbs down for Uni. Handball team

NEWCASTLE University Handball Club had invited seven teams to Lightfoot Sports Centre for last weekend to play for the Geordie Cup. For reasons not under Newcastle's control only four teams showed up on Saturday morning, the teams being Sunderland, Heriot Watt (Edinburgh), Teesside Flyers and Brentwood, and, of course, Newcastle the Cup-holders.

It was decided to let all the teams play League in one group at first. Then the fifth would have to play against the fourth, and the winner of that match would have to face the first as one semi-final, the other one being played between the second and third so that the tournament would have a final, a solution that may not have been the best one after all.

The tournament was started by Newcastle v. Sunderland. The two teams know each other well from various test matches and a tournament in Edinburgh last December and Newcastle wanted to make up for what they thought had then been a very unlucky 5:6 defeat. The final score was 6:4 to Newcastle who did some splendid performances on Saturday and ended up first.

Their other results:

Newcastle—Teesside 10:5

—Brentwood 5:5

—Heriot Watt 5:4

The table on Saturday evening was:

1. Newcastle	7:1	26:18
2. Sunderland	6:2	28:16
3. Heriot Watt	4:4	32:24
4. Brentwood	3:5	18:25
5. Teesside Flyers	0:8	22:43

MUCH EFFORT

On Sunday morning Teesside Flyers, one player short the day before, gained a 9:7 win over Brentwood and had to play Newcastle again. The first semi-final Sunderland v. Heriot Watt ended 4:6 and was almost the exact reverse of Saturday's match when Sunderland had won by 7:4. Newcastle had to work hard to secure their 11:5 win against Teesside.

After a 6:0 lead Newcastle knew the match was theirs, yet much effort had to be put into the second half (2 x 15 min.) and they were rather exhausted when the final whistle blew.

In the match for the third position, Sunderland beat Teesside 12:9.

UNLUCKY

The final between Newcastle and Heriot Watt saw a rather tired and somewhat unlucky Newcastle team unable to play their game like they had done the day before when, after a 4:0 lead by Heriot Watt, they had fought back and won 5:4. Heriot Watt at once took the lead, led 7:2 at half-time (2 x 20 min) and won by 15:5. There is no doubt that the better team won, though Newcastle weren't as bad as a 10-goal difference might indicate.

The atmosphere of the tournament was friendly though some players obviously mixed up rugby or something else and Handball and committed some rather ugly fouls for which they were duly sent off. The tournament did, however, lack spectators or supporters, whose cheering might have livened things up and would certainly have created some of the flair which at least those players from the continent (Norway, France, Germany) are accustomed to.

Final table:

1. Heriot Watt	8:4	53:33
2. Newcastle	9:3	40:38
3. Sunderland	8:4	44:31
4. Teesside Flyers	2:12	45:73
5. Brentwood	3:7	25:34

1973

LAST WEEKEND the University Handball team competed in the National Handball Championships at the Picketts Lock Centre, Edmonton. The 6 competing teams played each other once, and in their first match Newcastle drew 6-6 with Brentwood, the eventual champions.

Newcastle played Herriot-Watt next, and turned out to be the better team, winning 9-8. On Sunday Brentwood took an indisputable lead, and Newcastle went into their final game against Huyton needing at least a draw to take second place. Good teamwork allowed Newcastle to gain a 2-2 draw, and hence second place in the tournament on goal average.

n.b. Anyone interested in playing an exciting and fascinating sport will be most welcome at the practices each Tuesday at 9.00 p.m. at the Lightfoot Sports Centre and/or each Thursday at 8.00 p.m. at the Physical Education Centre.

HANDBALL

5 December
1973

AFTER BEING runners-up in the British Championships, Newcastle University Handball Club was once again successful, this time in the "Heriot-Watt University Challenge Cup Tournament" up in Edinburgh. Ten teams took part in the competition.

It was played in two pools each consisting of five teams and the semi final was to be between the first two teams of each of these pools.

The Newcastle team played against teams from Heriot-Watt University, Bellahouston, Strathclyde and Sunderland. Newcastle only lost one game against Bellahouston thereby becoming winners of group B. We then met Wolverhampton, second of group A, in the semi finals. By a great effort by all players we managed to go through to the finals to meet East Kilbride, a Handball Club outside Glasgow. After a half time lead of 6 : 1 we ended up with a 10 : 8 win only to keep the Cup for the fourth time.

This victory makes Newcastle Handball Club one of the best handball teams in England.

HANDBALL - what the hell is that, you might ask. Most people think it is a mix between netball and lacrosse, but in reality it is a very tough, physical sport, somewhere inbetween football and basketball.

Sunday 5th of March saw the first ever British Student Handball Championships in Nottingham. After training very hard (?) for about a month we felt it was time to show what we were made of. Newcastle was represented in both men's and women's events.

In their first match the boys recorded a 7-3 win over Nene. Unfortunately the boys were beginning to get tired after a hard night at Loughborough SU and they drew against both Keele and Loughborough.

After all this hard work we all thought they deserved to win but alas - Lady Luck was not on their side this time and Nottingham won the trophy on goal difference.

The girls, however, wiped the floor against their opponents, winning by a staggering margin of 10-2 in their first match against Nottingham/Nene and 11-2 against Loughborough. In the third and last match they met Keele.

Keele had only 4 players of their own and had, by the time Newcastle met them, sussed out which the best players were, so Newcastle lost 2-5. But it didn't matter. The championships were ours. We had won the first ever British Students Handball Championships - without having any Brits on the team.

Men's Team: B.Ribesén, R.I.Jonassen, K.Vassbotn, P.O.Baalerud, S.Langsethagen, K.Knutsen, K.Fersum, T.Holst.

Women's Team: E.Sjoelie, R.Mardalen, C.Clark, L.Skughei, J.Risa, M.Anderson, E.Bakken, K.Gronvold, M.Rekvik.

Handball display promise in debut

HANDBALL

By Manu Espinosa Nevraumont
in MANCHESTER

Last weekend the Newcastle University handball had a promising showing at the University Handball Championships in Manchester, organised by the ABUHC. Overall the team had 3 wins and 2 losses.

Getting off to a good start with a 6-3 win over Bangor they then fell to a 5-13 defeat to group-winners Oxford. A rather unjust score line of 4-9 against Lincoln A followed, in what was a closely contested game for the most part. Both sides had drawn a fixture only two weeks earlier.

Despite this sore defeat, Newcastle picked themselves back up to seal a narrow 4-3 win over Lincoln B to ensure third place in their group. However, the loss to Lincoln A meant qualification to the quarter-finals was not possible, but third entailed a play-off against Brighton.

In what was probably one of the games of the tournament, Newcastle prevailed 7-6 victors. In engaging a new set of tactics, Brighton were caught off guard, conceding two suspensions and two penalties. After some spectacular goals from Juan Carlos Sánchez "Kacho", a frantic finish ensued with Brighton looking for an equalizer. Despite top-scorer Geofrey Laborde coming off injured and receiving a suspension themselves, Newcastle stayed strong defensively to pull off a fantastic victory.

The University of Essex won the competition after beating the University of Manchester in the final. Newcastle's final win meant an overall joint 9th place position out of over 20 teams, in what is the Handball Club's first competitive showing.

The Club was established following on from a popular series of GoPlay sessions ran by NUSU. The team is multicultural with Spanish, French, German and Mexican students among an encouraging number of British players. Several of the British contingent have been asked to attend trials for the Great Britain Students' squad, with a forthcoming update should any make the cut.

Mark Harrison, who has been coaching the team and leading from the sidelines for the Championships said, "to finish in the top half of the tournament amongst some highly experienced teams, in what is our first year in existence, is phenomenal. It was necessary for the players to give 100%, and not one of them disappointed."

The Newcastle University Handball Club is under the Presidency of Jack McKay and after such a successful first season with a largely beginner squad, plans are already underway for a larger recruitment programme in September and entry into a national England Handball league.

Handball in the North East enters a new Viking age

By news_web - 8 February 2016

The Newcastle Vikings Handball Club has been growing since 2012. Image: NVHC.

Sports Editor Calum Wilson visited the Newcastle Vikings Handball Club to discuss the rise of Handball in the North East.

Founded in 2012, amidst the aftermath of Olympic fever, the Newcastle Vikings became the first developmental Handball club to hail from the city. Despite their humble beginnings, the club set out on a mission to grow Handball in the North East. Four years on, the club and the sport is showing great promise.

The Newcastle Vikings currently boast a Men's, Women's and Junior team. The Men's and Women's teams both compete in the England Handball North Regional Development League. The Vikings made their debut in the league last season, with both sides finishing in an impressive 4th position.

As the Vikings enter the latter half of only their second year in the Development League, both teams look set for top four finishes once more. Last Saturday, the Men's team beat the combined outfit Leeds Hornets/University of Huddersfield, at their home venue at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre.

"THE NEWCASTLE VIKINGS CURRENTLY BOAST A MEN'S, WOMEN'S AND JUNIOR TEAM"

Despite starting the match as underdogs, with the visitors 2nd in the table, the Vikings sailed into a 3-1 lead thanks to an early hat-trick from left-winger Gracjan Joppek. Joppek, who is Polish, was one of 5 non-British members of the diverse 10-man Vikings squad, epitomising the international appeal of Handball.

Left-half Athbi Almarzouq, a Kuwaiti student studying at Northumbria University, extended the Vikings' lead to 6-2 later in the half. A two-minute sin-bin for the opposition number 4 allowed the hosts to stretch their advantage to 10-3 before the first time-out. The two teams then traded blows, before going into half time at 13-6.

The start of the second period was a much more even encounter. Daniel Walsh in the Vikings' goal was called into action on a couple of occasions as the visitors tried to mount a comeback. Leeds/Huddersfield added to their tally, but a breakaway goal from Matthew Lamb soon restored the 7-goal difference.

Almarzouq and Joppek were amongst the scorers as both sides shared a flurry of late goals. The Vikings held on, with the match finishing 22-15. However, the day's entertainment was far from over as the Vikings played host to the second round of the North East Handball Tournament, against teams from Durham and York.

Organised by Vikings' Head Coach Marlen Slinning, the friendly tournament is designed to help develop Handball across the North East of England. "The plan for us is to get more clubs in the North East", Slinning explained. "In the UK, I think Handball is actually growing, but here in the North East we are a step behind most places."

Neither Newcastle University or Northumbria University currently field an official Handball team, but Slinning is hopeful that the Vikings can work closely with the Universities in the future. "We want Handball to be active within the Universities. We would want to work together with any University clubs to develop Handball in the North East."

"IN THE UK, I THINK HANDBALL IS ACTUALLY GROWING, BUT HERE IN THE NORTH EAST WE ARE A STEP BEHIND MOST PLACES"

Slinning, who comes from Norway and has years of Handball experience, also wants to develop the sport amongst younger children. "We have sessions for children down to the age of 8, we are trying to get kids involved at a younger age. So we have improved, in that we started with just Women and Men and now we offer Handball for kids, but it is a slow process to develop Handball in the North East."

Vikings propelling invasion of Handball

Written by Mark Sleightholm • 19th February 2018 • Sport

For a sport that's so popular in the rest of Europe, handball has a surprisingly low profile in the UK. But just six years after its foundation the Newcastle Vikings Handball Club boasts a men's and a women's team, alongside junior teams, and counts several Newcastle students among its members.

Handball's popularity elsewhere in Europe and further afield explains the club's high number of international members, and Newcastle University students such as Maren Liane and Emily Bjerk joined the club after growing up playing the sport in Norway. Fellow Norwegian Pål Jakobsen had limited experience before arriving in the UK, but was a keen follower of the sport and now enjoys playing for the Vikings.

Liane explains the sport as "a mix between football, basketball and rugby," with the simplicity of football combined with the pace and high scores of basketball.

"Everyone plays defence, and everyone plays attack, so everyone runs the whole court," she continued. "You also have tackles as well, so it's a bit more physical than basketball in that sense." Indeed, the lack of protective clothing is deceptive; handball can be a brutal sport.

The Vikings, however, tend to play in a more friendly manner, making the club a good starting place for beginners. The unlimited subs in handball makes it relatively easy for beginners to gain match experience, and Vikings members are more than welcome to just attend training sessions.

These sessions are held twice a week: Monday evenings in South Shields and Wednesday evenings in Benfield, just next to Walkergate Metro.

For those looking to get a bit more competitive, the club holds training matches and competes in handball leagues. "There's a few people who started off with just doing training," Liane explained, "and then they joined the training matches and now they're playing the league."

The men's team currently sits at the bottom of the National North division, but is more concerned with gaining experience and having fun than racking up a string of victories.

"We're quite new; we have a mix of abilities," Jakobsen explained. "We know we're not going to be the best in this league, and therefore there's not much complaining either. We're there to develop and have fun, basically."

The women's team is currently a division lower, in the Regional North league. Like the men, they want to win but their main motivation is the fun of playing matches.

The club was set up in the aftermath of the London 2012 Olympics, where the appearance of a British handball team sparked a wave of interest in the sport across the country. Team GB crashed out of the Games after losing every single one of their matches, but their presence helped to introduce handball to a British audience.

By building connections with local schools the Vikings can introduce handball to a new generation of players, and ultimately encourage more British kids to take up the sport

The Vikings' membership consists of a mix of students – particularly those such as Liane and Bjerk who played the sport before coming to the UK – and locals. While setting up a handball club in Newcastle University's Athletic Union could help to attract more student members this would also require a lot of work and dedication from its founders, so for the time being the Vikings are the main source of Tyneside handball action.

"I think quite a few people are keen when they come to university to try something new, to do something they've never done before," Liane explained. But unlike the AU clubs' ability to advertise their sports at freshers' fair, the Vikings are not part of the University and so can't benefit from this kind of publicity.

"It's a challenge with us being an outside club," she continued. "Because it's hard to get in contact with students unless they know about handball beforehand."

One of the club's main aims going forward is to reach out to junior players. By building connections with local schools the Vikings can introduce handball to a new generation of players, and ultimately encourage more British kids to take up the sport. The junior teams have their own training sessions and can take part in under-16 competitions if they want to.

The three students are keen to spread the word about their beloved sport. Liane summarised a typical encounter with English students: "everyone that I've explained it to is like, 'Oh that sounds really cool. Why do we not have it?' and I think with it being an indoor sport as well, it's quite nice for England!"

"The basic rules are quite easy to get into, it's a bit like football in the sense that as long as you have a ball you can start to play, which is good for beginners."

Anyone is welcome to join the Vikings and try out handball. The club offers three free taster sessions for newbies, and Bjerk points out that a great way to find out more about the sport is to tag along to a training session. "If there are people who don't know what it is they can also come by and just watch and see what we're doing, she explained. "They don't have to train, they can just sit and watch how it works."

If handball's moment has finally come in the UK, the Vikings are at the forefront of this expansion. Their mix of competition and fun and welcoming attitudes towards beginners makes the club an important part of the development of handball in the UK, and the Norwegian students hope that their enthusiasm for the sport will be shared by more of their fellow students in Newcastle.

Handball, often referred to as a mix of basketball, football and volleyball, is the fastest team ball sport in the world, and has rapidly grown in popularity in the UK since capturing the British public's attention at the London 2012 Olympic Games.

Earlier this year, BUCS' Innovative Sport Review saw handball asked to deliver a successful pilot of its proposal over the coming season, with a view to initiating formal BUCS implementation for the 2020-21 season.

This recognition gives added impetus to the annual British University Handball Championships, which this season is set to take place over the weekend of 6-8 March 2020 down at the Medway Sports Park in Kent.

Monkseaton's hand-y squad

Evening Chronicle 30 June 2004

You have to hand it to Monkseaton Middle School - when it comes to flying England's flag they are top of the class!

The North Tyneside school has just concluded its first year of competition in the Scottish U-12 and U-14 Junior Leagues - in the sport of handball.

At the start of the year the boys and girls teams (pictured) suffered heavy defeats but rallied as the season progressed, eventually gaining victories over Tryst and Gracemount.

Up against three other teams in their league, the under-12 team finished fourth while the under-14s finished third out of five teams.

With the competition expanding next season (October to June) to include more Scottish teams, Monkseaton Middle will be joined by pupils from Whitley Bay and Monkseaton High. They will also be playing in the England junior event with their older squad.

The year culminated in an invitation to attend an international event, called "Focus Europe," in Sligo, Ireland.

Fielding three teams against Irish and German opposition, Monkseaton's boys finished eighth and ninth from 11 teams, while the girls team (a joint Monkseaton /Solingen squad) took the girls title and were undefeated in eight games.

School success deserves big hand

Evening Chronicle 8 June 2005

You have to hand it to Monkseaton Middle School - when it comes to handball they are top of the form.

The newly-formed North Tyneside squad travelled north of the border and defeated Gracemount to claim the Under-12 Scottish Cup.

The team, having played only since September last year, faced Gracemount for the third time this season, having beaten them in both their Scottish League matches on the way to sealing the title earlier this year.

The Cup final, held at the Tryst Sports Centre in Cumbernauld, was the culmination of a hard but successful year for the young squad, who have suffered only one defeat all season. The game started well for Monkseaton, the first half finishing 4-2 in their favour.

Gracemount, however, came back hard in the second period and the match ended 9-9 and then 12-12 after extra time.

Vikings are handed a first chance in league

TYNESIDE handball club the Newcastle Vikings are about to embark on their first competitive season after forming only a year ago, writes MICHAEL RACE.

The Vikings joined the Scottish Handball Association earlier this year and are scheduled to be playing against Edinburgh and Glasgow in the coming weeks after developing rapidly in just 12 months.

Head coach Marlen Slinning said: "We started the club a year ago and had a lot of development sessions which attracted quite a bit of interest."

"This allowed us to form a few teams and develop the club to the standard of handball which can be played competitively."

The origins of handball are

somewhat unclear. One view is the game was invented in Germany in the late 19th century to keep football players fit during the off-season.

Another is the game goes all the way back to the time of the ancient Greeks, with evidence showing the early stages of what is now modern-day handball.

One thing for sure - the Vikings are the first and only handball club in the North East to play competitively, the new squad taking on 14 other teams from across Britain in the Association.

Slinning added: "I have been playing handball since I was about five."

"I am from Norway and handball was big and competitive over there."

"It is great we as a club can now play competitively."

"The game has really taken off since the Olympic Games, which showed how action-packed and entertaining it could be."

"We chose to join the Scottish Handball Association as it is easier for us to travel to Edinburgh and Glasgow, where we will play most of our games as there is no court with the right dimensions to play in the North East."

A standard handball court is approximately 40 metres long and 20 metres wide - a large indoor arena to facilitate the action-packed sport which inspired the Vikings to form.

As well as their senior side, the Vikings have launched junior handball sessions at the Percy Hedley Sports Academy in Killingworth.

Slinning said: "We hope we attract new members to our club with a grant we were given from Sport England aimed at increasing participation in the North East."

"Handball is enjoyable, great fun, a great way to meet new people and a new exciting sport to try out for all ages and genders."

Anyone interested in playing for the club should along to training sessions on Wednesdays (juniors 7.00-8.00, adults 8.00-10.00) at Percy Hedley School.

"The Merseyside club were first to get on the score sheet, but the Vikings soon struck back through Marie Brevet before edging in front. A brace of goals each from Sandra Christke, Gesa Junge, Marlen Slinning and Sofie Vaula, backed up by typically tight Vikings defending and a penalty save by goalkeeper Andrea King, helped Newcastle build a strong 9-3 lead at half time.

"Again Peninsula came out slightly faster after the break, before captain Sandra Christke and head coach Marlen Slinning started to dominate the goalscoring proceedings as Newcastle regained control of the game. Six second-half goals from Christke together with a further five from Slinning fired the Vikings into an unassailable lead as the Vikings broke the 20 goals barrier. A late strike from Judyta Turulska rounded the game off as Newcastle Vikings claimed a 21-9 victory to jump up to second in the England North Regional Development League table."

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men and women came away from their England North Development League matches against Leeds University with impressive 27-20 and 26-9 victories respectively.

Tynesiders are too strong on court for student rivals

Playing at Leeds Fusal Arena, Simon Heintz's 13 goals for the men and Marlen Slinning's 10 strikes for the women led the way.

They were ably supported by six pieces from Jonathan Basti, Marie Brevet and Sandra Christke plus a creditable five goals from a charging Matthew Lamb.

The Vikings' women team made a flying start to their match, thanks to an early hat-trick from winger Brevet, as they opened up a 10-point lead before Leeds eventually troubled the scorers.

By half-time Newcastle were 13-3 ahead.

The home team's half-time formation changes briefly threatened a comeback but the Vikings' tight defence soon stifled them.

Head coach Slinning and captain Christke made the most of Leeds' handling errors to score several breakaway counter attacks as Newcastle further stretched their advantage, the final whistle signalling a commanding victory for the Vikings.

The men's match was a more closely-fought affair but the Vikings soon began to open up a lead as their training-out team plays mesmerised the Leeds defence.

With winger Heintz seemingly scoring at will from the acutest of angles and the back-court power of Basti and David Miroga combining with Lamb's opportunism, a 12-8 half-time advantage for the Vikings was never under threat.

After a difficult debut season in the Scottish League, the Vikings' men's focus on teamwork under coach Jason Lee is creating new-found confidence as their victory over Leeds took their unbeaten run to three games.

They will look to continue their good form in this weekend's tough double-header.

They travel to London for a League Cup preliminary qualifier before a home league match against Huddersfield University.

Vikings doubly delighted to play Leeds off the court

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings claimed a fantastic double over Leeds Carnegie in the England Handball North Regional Development League.

The club's women's team celebrated a resounding 29-1 victory while the men's squad triumphed 27-22 to stretch their unbeaten league run to five matches and move them up to second in the table.

The victories at Leeds Metropolitan University's Sports Centre added to Newcastle's respective 25-3 and 26-19 home victories in November.

Judyta Turulska, captain Sandra Christie and Vikings' head coach Marlen Slinning led the way for the dominant women's team, scoring six goals apiece.

They were ably backed up by four goals each from Marie-Louise Brevet and Sofie Vaula, Kathryn Powell also bagging a brace and Blessing Ogburn on the scoresheet for the first time this season.

While several chances to rack up an even bigger win went astray, Newcastle were rarely troubled defensively.

The home team's second-half consolation was a disappointment for the Vikings as they looked set to keep a clean sheet.

The 29-1 result, though, reinforced Newcastle's third place in the league as they narrowed the gap to leaders NEM Hawks and Liverpool.

The Vikings men's team went into the match missing several regular players so it was a chance for others to step up to the mark - which they did.

Brilliant goalkeeping from Mike Cooke in the first half and Dan Walsh in the second, supported by solid defensive work by Craig Swanson in particular, helped foil many of Leeds' attacking plays as the Vikings built a strong advantage at the other end of the court.

Newcastle's goalkeeping was led by new centre Amaury Michelant's debut eight goals with seven from Jonathan Bastit and four from Mark Harrison.

However, it was setting up younger brother Tom to claim his first senior goal for the Vikings which satisfied Harrison more.

A fourth league win on the trot takes Newcastle's men level on points with Bolton Husars at the top of the league.

Anyone interested in playing, supporting or sponsoring handball in the North East can find out more at www.newcastle-handball.co.uk or via the club's Facebook pages Newcastle Vikings Handball Club and South Shields Handball.

Vikings erase the memory of defeat

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's team bounced back from the previous week's defeat to beat Manchester 28-19 in their England North Regional Development League clash.

In doing so they extended their lead at the top of the table.

However, it proved a frustrating turnaround for the Vikings' women as Manchester took the spoils 18-17 in a tight match at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre.

The game started well for the hosts as a brilliant early hat-trick from half player Gesa Junge, subsequently matched by fellow half Judyta Turulska, helped Newcastle build a 10-7 first-half advantage.

Manchester came out the stronger after the break and soon turned the scoreline in their favour as a nervy Newcastle side faltered in a repeat scenario of their opening match of the season.

A late flourish from winger Marie-Louise Brevet to grab a brace of goals in the dying seconds proved too little too late as Manchester held on for the win.

Newcastle's men also went into their encounter looking to avenge points dropped in their early-season away fixture.

David Miorza, Simon Heintz and player-coach Jason Lee got the ball rolling with early strikes before centre Amaury Michelant bagged the first of his five first-half goals.

Ably supported by strong defence and goalkeeping, the Vikings had built an unassailable 14-7 lead by half-time.

The second period continued in similar manner with goals coming from throughout the squad in a great team performance.

They included a breakaway brace from substitute wingers Scott Garrow and Robert Thompson's first of the season.

Heintz and Michelant added further late scores to their individual tallies.

They wrapped up a convincing victory which took the Vikings four points clear of the chasing pack ahead of another home league match against Liverpool at Temple Park tomorrow.

Hawks swoop to beat Vikings

HANDBALL

AFTER leading for much of the game, Newcastle Vikings' women's team was unlucky to be narrowly beaten 23-21 by NEM Hawks in its North Regional Development League match in Bolton.

The Hawks had been unable to fulfil the reverse fixture the previous week-end, the Vikings consequently being awarded a 10-0 win by the England Handball Association.

After half player Gesa Junge set the Vikings' ball rolling, the first period was dominated by a string of great goals by the returning Sofie Vaula, who fired in an array of scores both from the wing and the line positions.

Left-half Judyta Turulska also picked up a brace.

The Manchester-based side was initially finding it hard to break through a solid Newcastle defence at the other end, backed up by excellent agile goalkeeping from Andrea King between the posts, but recovered enough to draw level 8-8 by half-time.

The Vikings came out the stronger side after the break.

They quickly stretched out a five-goal lead as each of the other Newcastle outfield players was on the scoresheet.

However, the stronger Hawks, benefitting from having several experienced Super Eight League players in their squad, gradually clawed their way back with powerful strikes from their back-court players and two penalties the diving Kings was unfortunate not to save.

As the Vikings fought to stay ahead, the game was over-shadowed by a foul on player-coach Marlen Slinning who suffered a suspected broken nose as she tried to break through the Hawks' defence line and missed the last five minutes of the match.

The incident meant a tense finale, the Hawks seizing the initiative with fast breaks to breach the unsettled Newcastle team and just edge the game.

The Vikings remain second in the table ahead of their deciding final-week-end double-header against the two Merseyside teams next month.

Juniors have plenty in hand to beat Churchill

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' mixed junior team defeated Churchill Community College 11-2 in a friendly match at Percy Hedley Sports Academy.

This was the first match of the season for the hosts but they started the match with two superb goals in the first five minutes from backcourt players Jamie Clark and James Porter.

Churchill hit back quickly with a well-placed goal and followed that up with another well taken-score, quickly breaking through the Vikings' defence.

With the scores level, the Vikings closed the gaps and formed a solid defence for the rest of the half.

Charlie Pears joined the two other backcourt players on the scoresheet just before half-time and the Vikings went into the break 7-2 up.

After the team talks, Churchill came back stronger in defence, determined to make it more tricky for the Vikings to hit the back of the net.

However, four further scores from Rebecca Johnson, Clark and Porter sealed the Vikings' victory.

The Vikings' junior team consisted of Cameron Reveale, Krystina Coulson, Charlie Pears, (Rebecca Johnson, Jamie Clark, Raymond Latcham, James Porter, Andrei Inta and Matthew Fairgrieve.

■ LIVERPOOL came from behind to take the spoils 22-15 against Newcastle Vikings' men's team in their England Handball North Regional Development League match.

After losing to their opponents in their opening match, of the season, Newcastle were looking to make the most of home advantage in the return fixture at Temple Park Leisure Centre to extend their lead at the top of the table.

They made a strong start as goals from player-coach Jason Lee and Robert Thompson from the wings and back-court players Amaury Michelant and Dawid Miozga helped them build a good early lead.

However, Liverpool - with just seven players - found another gear to quickly peg the score back while stifling the Vikings' attacks before moving ahead.

At half-time, the match was finely poised 11-10 to Liverpool.

The Merseysiders gradually stretched their advantage in the second half as Newcastle struggled to break through the Liverpool defence and faltered with their shooting accuracy.

It was not until 20 minutes into the second half, and by that point his side was seven goals adrift, Michelant eventually made a breakthrough with his fourth goal of the match.

Newcastle rallied with a quick brace from half-back Jonathan Bastit and late strikes from Thompson and former captain Chris Bowe - but it was not to be the Vikings' day as the Merseysiders secured the victory.

Mersey mission brings Vikings mixed results

NEWCASTLE Vikings women's team ended their first season in the England Handball North Regional Development League with a win and a defeat.

They clinched a brilliant 48-7 victory at Merseyside-based Peninsula but then lost 26-4 to table-topping Liverpool.

Against Peninsula, it did not take the Tynesiders long to get into their scoring stride as half Judyta Turulska, line Sandra Christke and winger Marie-Louise Brevet each helped themselves to early hat-tricks.

Goalkeeper Andrea King kept the home team at bay with a series of customary diving saves at the opposite end of the court. Head-coach Marlen Slinning then came on to get into the act with four strikes.

By the time Turulska had added her sixth and captain Christke her fifth, the Newcastle side had built a strong 18-3 advantage at half-time.

The Vikings nevertheless stepped up the pace in the second period in a superbly dominant team performance.

Half Pienke Nanne and centre Kathryn Powell added their names to the scoresheet with three and two goals respectively but it was Turulska and Slinning who continued to rain the goals in.

By the time the final whistle went they had hit the net 13 times apiece, Christke claiming 10 and Brevet seven.

Less than 24 hours later the Newcastle ladies were back on court again for a much tougher encounter with table-topping Liverpool.

The Vikings' tiredness from the energy-sapping win of the previous day was soon evident as they struggled to break through a well-drilled home defensive line.

Liverpool showed greater experience and shooting accuracy and had built an unassailable 12-2 lead by the break, Nanne and Slinning scoring the Vikings' goals.

Goalkeeper King tried her best to keep Liverpool's strikes at bay, including making two penalty saves.

However, despite further goals from Nanne and Turulska, the final scoreline was to be Newcastle's heaviest defeat of an otherwise largely positive season.

The Vikings look set to finish in fourth place on 26 points, having won seven and lost five of their matches while maintaining the second-best defensive record in the league.

The ladies take on Bristol in their League Cup semi-final at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields on Saturday (3.00).

Meanwhile, the Vikings men's team's first season in the England Handball North Regional Development League ended with a 23-14 home defeat to Bolton Hussars at Temple Park Leisure Centre.

The result left them sitting in second place in the men's league table, pending the completion of the other teams' remaining fixtures.

That represents a significant improvement from the Vikings' debut 2013/14 campaign in the Scottish League.

Their final 2014/15 league season tally reads played 12, won six, drawn two, lost four.

The squad scored 256 goals and conceded 240 goals for a +16 goal difference and ended up with 26 points.

HANDBALL

GLASGOW'S men retained their Tyneside Handball Tournament crown and Bedfordshire's Cranfield University Wolves claimed the women's title at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields.

Hosted by Newcastle Vikings Handball Club, the end-of-season tournament - now in its third year - welcomed teams from across England and Scotland.

The early group matches were all close-fought affairs before the three experienced Scottish men's teams picked up the pace and began to rack up big scores. Edinburgh claimed the biggest win of the day in beating York Hunters 18-2 before East Kilbride's EK82 defeated Newcastle's second team 18-4.

Edinburgh beat York 24-10, the Scottish side's Chris Mowat going on to take the tournament's top scorer accolade for the second year running with his 32 goals. However, it was Glasgow who were to top the men's group unbeaten in their five matches. With the home sides giving a run-out to several new and inexperienced players, Newcastle's two men's teams and women's side all struggled to get into their usual attacking flow. However, both the men's squads did eventually gain some joy in each winning their final play-off matches 10-8 and 13-7 over EK82 and York Hunters respectively, the Vikings men's first team thus claiming third place overall.

A strong Cranfield side also won all of their three group matches to top the women's table.

Jills Schneider's top-scoring 12 goals for Glasgow's ladies then helped them claim third place with an 8-2 success over a listing Newcastle Vikings squad.

The women's final was a more evenly-contested game, however, the mixed York/Durham universities' ladies team pulling back from a two-goal half-time deficit to level the game at 8-8 in the last minute.

Cranfield then scored their tournament-winning goal with just seconds to go - 9-8 the final score.

The men's decider between Glasgow and Edinburgh proved even closer and produced a thrilling climax to the tournament.

Level-pegging at 5-5 at half-time, the game was to end in a 10-10 draw and go to a sudden-death penalty shoot-out.

After each side scored their first attempts, both teams' second shots were acrobatically saved by the two goalkeepers.

Glasgow finally won the shoot-out contest 2-1 in the third round, scoring the decisive penalty throw before their goalkeeper saved well for the second time to clinch victory.

Vikings go down with a fight in Cup decider

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings ladies' team put in a gritty team performance but went down 22-14 to a strong London GD II side in the England Handball Association Women's League Cup final in Manchester.

Depleted by the absence of several regular players, the Vikings went into their first national cup decider at the Trafford Soccercise with just seven available players so were up against it from the outset.

The experienced London GD side, on the other hand, benefited from a full bench of substitutes.

Newcastle were slow to get into their game as London raced into an early 7-0 lead.

However, the Vikings soon found their defensive resolve and attacking potency once half-player Gesa Junge's long-range effort put them on the scoresheet, quickly followed by a hat-trick from player-coach Marlen Slinning.

Remarkably, the Vikings battled back to just one behind at 8-7 thanks to further strikes from Junge, centre Slinning and captain Sandra Christke from the penalty line.

However, London seized back the initiative just before the break to go in 10-7 up at half-time.

The second period saw London put the Vikings to the sword with incessant attacking plays to extend their advantage.

However, a brace of Christke goals from the line position and Slinning's fifth, together with great instinctive saves from goalkeeper Andrea King, kept Newcastle in the game.

Half Fienke Nanne added her name to the Vikings' scoresheet with a powerful strike from distance before neatly setting up winger Blessing Ogbée.

Without the ability to make any rolling substitutions, though, tiredness began to take its toll on

The Vikings never gave up however, and kept up their fighting spirit throughout with Slinning scoring her sixth and seventh goals to give her the cup sion of the game is goals scored with trick shots, such as shooting while spinning in the air, score double.

Goals scored by the 'rush' goalkeepers also score double.

Points are scored for the winners of each 10-minute half of the match, 'golden goals' deciding each half winner if scores are level and a penalty shoot-out held if each team wins a half to decide the overall winner.

Newcastle Vikings, finalists in the English League Cup this year and one of 14 women's teams entered in the competition, appear to have been drawn in a tough group.

They will face National League and cup winners London GD's first team, National Cup runners-up Coventry, London-based Olympia, and the first team of guest entrants TV Ettlingenweier from Germany.

Their group matches take place on Saturday, the knock-out rounds on Sunday.

Newcastle will welcome back former Vikings player and top goals-per-game scorer from their debut 2013/14 season Nina van Ruijven, who is flying in from the Netherlands to play in the tournament.

Also making a guest appearance will be Manchester Handball Club's Edna Ogbée, sister of Vikings' winger Blessing.

Life's a beach for Vikings!

City's girls by the seaside for first foray into sandball

NEWCASTLE Vikings Handball Club's women's team enjoyed mixed fortunes competing in the third annual British Beach Handball Championships at Branksome Chine beach in Poole, Dorset.

As one of 14 women's teams taking part in the tournament, it proved a tough debut in the heat of a sun-kissed day on the south coast for the Vikings as they sought to get to grips with the differing tactics of the 'sandball' version of the game.

Beach handball is played on a smaller court than standard indoor handball, with four-a-side teams rather than the normal seven-a-side.

Points are scored for the winners of each 10-minute half of the match, while entertaining trick shots, such as shooting while spinning in the air, and goals scored by the 'rush' goalkeepers count double.

After losing both of their opening group matches 2-0 against London-based Olympia and then London GD's first team, the Vikings fought back to win their first half-match point against Coventry.

With their opponents just snatching the second half to level the points, the match went into a running penalty shoot-out to decide the overall match winner.

However, Newcastle were unable to score from their three attempts, Coventry try going on to take the match 2-1. The Vikings then went down 2-0 to the first team of guest entrants TV Ettlingenweier from Germany in their final group game.

Day two saw the Vikings drawn in a play-off for the plate competition against Cambridge.

It proved to be the euphoric highlight of the Vikings ladies' weekend.

They won their first match, convincingly taking the first half 9-3 and then battling back from six goals down in the second half with well-taken two-point goals to triumph 11-10 for a brilliant 2-0 overall match victory.

The Tynesiders then fought all the way in their plate quarter-final and went agonisingly close to levelling the match in the dying seconds before Oxford Blues scored a 'golden goal' decider to win the second half for a 2-0 knock-out.

Newcastle nevertheless came away looking on the positives of an entertaining first foray into the beach handball arena.

They savoured their first half and match wins in particular and the fact all of their players were on the scoresheet during the tournament.

The women's plate final was eventually won by local club Sandbanks against London Angels, while TV Ettlingenweier defeated Coventry in the women's cup final.

■ Newcastle Vikings' ladies who lost by one point to Manchester in their opening England Handball North Regional Development League clash

Vikings are handed a defeat in first outing

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' women's team were left frustrated after seeing Manchester snatch a late 23-22 win in their opening match of the England Handball North Regional Development League season.

Their male counterparts also saw an early lead overturned.

Playing in front of good crowd at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields, half players Judyta Turuliska and Alina Inta got the Vikings' ladies off to a bright start with an early brace and hat-trick respectively as the home side built a strong lead.

It was one they were to maintain throughout most of the match.

Tight defence was complemented by further strikes from captain Sandra Christke from the line position, winger Blessing Ogbee and a brace each from player-coach Marlen Slinning and centre Nina Linsemann either side of a further Inta double as Newcastle eased to a 14-10 half-time advantage.

The second period began in similar vein to the first with two Turuliska strikes as the well-matched teams traded goals, Slinning, Inta and Ogbee also each adding to their first half tallies.

Manchester narrowed the gap briefly, only for Newcastle to regain their four-goal advantage through Slinning and Turuliska.

Again the away side clawed their way back - and this time it was to prove decisive.

The Vikings were unable to make the most of a two-minute suspension to break through a depleted but solidly resolute Manchester defence line before the scores were eventually levelled at 21-21.

Manchester then went ahead for the first time in the dying minutes and while Christke pulled one back it was to be so near and yet so far for the Vikings at the final whistle.

Newcastle's men also made a great start.

Centre Peter Schichtel set the ball rolling with two early goals either side of an Athbi Almarzouq strike from the half position before winger Wiktor Laczny fired in four quickfire goals to help the Vikings stretch out an early lead.

However, Manchester soon found their attacking rhythm as eight first-half Manuel Lane strikes - out of a personal 12-goal match tally - almost single-handedly pulled the away team back and into the lead.

Further Schichtel and Almarzouq braces plus Laczny and Gracjan Joppok efforts nevertheless kept the home side in the running, Newcastle going into the half-time break 14-13 behind.

However, the Vikings were unable to keep space during the second half and, despite Laczny taking his own goals tally to eight and further strikes from Almarzouq and Schichtel, Manchester extended their advantage to record a 22-18 success.

Vikings' girls hand out a defeat to the Hawks

HANDBALL

A BRILLIANT team performance by Newcastle Vikings' women saw them claim an unexpected 28-19 away victory against Manchester NEM Hawks in the England North Regional Development League.

Going into the match with just seven available players and no substitutes, the Vikings were clear underdogs on paper against the more experienced and powerful Hawks.

However, half player Judyta Turulska's early flourish on her way to a match-winning personal 12-goal tally saw Newcastle build a lead right from the start.

It was a lead they never surrendered throughout the game - thanks also in part to wayward early shooting from the Hawks.

With centre Sina Linsenmann and line-player Sandra Christie also scoring seven goals apiece, Newcastle managed to keep up the pressure at the top end of the court while resolutely thwarting the Hawks' fast and strong attacking plays as the home side sought to fight back.

Captain Christie led by example with superb body-on-the-line defending.

Excellent goalkeeping from Andrea King also helped to keep the Hawks' powerful shots at bay.

An unstoppable bullet shot from right half Gesa Junge took Newcastle into the half-time break with a 14-10 advantage while winger Blessing Ogbie also put her name on the scoresheet soon into the second half.

Youngster Krystina Coulson also enjoyed a promising first full game since stepping up from the junior ranks.

However, it was Newcastle's three back-court players who dominated and fittingly it was top-scorer Turulska who rounded off the goalscoring.

Meanwhile, the Vikings men's team took part in the annual Edinburgh Handball Tournament.

They started with to a 7-4 win against Dundee but then suffered defeats to Dublin (6-8), Cumbernauld-based Tryst (6-10) and eventual winners Glasgow (4-7) before a battling 8-8 draw with East Kilbride's EK82 in their final play-off match.

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's and women's teams extended their winning runs with two high-scoring away victories against Merseyside-based Peninsula in the England Handball North Regional Development League.

The Vikings women had an early start to travel to the Glyndwr University venue in Wrexham.

Hitting a rich vein of scoring form, Turulska went on to add a further six first-half goals in her personal 13-goal tally.

The tight Newcastle defence line restricted the home team to just one goal before the break, goalkeeper Andrea King making several good saves too.

Winger Blessing Ogbie and centre Kathryn Powell also added their names to the first-half scoresheet before winger Meghan Acres claimed her first Vikings goal.

Right-half Gesa Jungesoon ensured all six of Newcastle's outfield players were on target.

All four players went on to add further strikes before Turulska and captain Christie rounded off a well-deserved 33-7 victory.

That made it three wins in a row and pushed the Vikings up to second in the league table.

■ Newcastle Vikings' ladies team made it three league wins in a row by beating Merseyside club Peninsula

The men then took to the court against an experienced Peninsula team who were last season playing in the second-tier Championship League.

New centre Nicholas Foldager opened the Newcastle scoring as he fired in seven first-half goals, Athbi Almarzoug also striking four from the left-half position.

With Daniel Walsh making crucial saves between the posts, and a first Vikings strike for line player Holger Schulz, the away team's confidence was building as they went into the break with a 15-9 advantage.

Almarzoug and winger Wiktor Laczny each claimed a further four second-half efforts as Newcastle sought to maintain their lead and fend off a Peninsula fightback.

As the game opened up, wing-

A late Gracjan Joppek brace and finishes from Schulz and Laczny rounded off the Vikings' scoring in their 32-25 win.

Vikings leave it late to earn a crucial point

A THRILLING finish saw Newcastle Vikings' men claim an equaliser in the dying seconds of their England North Regional Development League clash against the University of Leeds' Gryphons at the Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields.

HANDBALL

In a very evenly-matched game where there was rarely more than a single goal separating the two sides throughout the 60 minutes, the home side's goalscoring was led by half players Abbi Almaraz and Stephan Stricker with together with crucial saves from goalkeepers Daniel Walsh and Faisal Alharbi, ensured the teams kept level.

A quick-fire Almaraz hat-trick then put Newcastle tantalisingly ahead - but yet again the Gryphons pulled back and edged in front.

Stalwart line player Craig Swanson set the ball rolling at the start of the second half with a well-deserved first Vikings goal of the season.

Striker from winger Gracjan Joppek, Stricker and Lami, With the clock running down into the final few seconds, Laczy broke through the Leeds defence line to fire in the leveliser for a 22-22 final scoreline.

Meanwhile, the University of Leeds' women's B team was forced to forfeit its game after being unable to field a full team of registered league players, granting Newcastle a default 10-0 win.

The Vikings' ladies nevertheless played out a 22-9 friendly win against a makeshift Leeds side, Newcastle taking the opportunity to give several less experienced players valuable court time.

A BELOW-PAR team performance saw Newcastle Vikings Handball Club's women squad lose 23-11 to a combined Leeds Hornets/Huddersfield team in the England North Regional Development League.

The Hornets took an early lead at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre.

Newcastle initially stayed in touch through goals from half players Judyta Turulska and Alina Inta.

However, the away team's more potent attacking plays and solid defence line, combined with wayward shooting from the increasingly frustrated Vikings, helped them stretch out an eight-goal lead.

Line-player Sandra Christke and Inta eventually found the back of the net but by half-time the Vikings were 10 points adrift at 14-4.

Two more Inta strikes at the start of the second period gave the home side hope of an unlikely comeback.

While the match was now more evenly matched with a better defensive display from the Vikings, the damage had already been done.

Newcastle kept pressing and added goals through Turulska, Christke and a brace from player-coach Marlen Slinning - returning to action after injury.

They were unable to pull the game back any further, however, and by the time Inta nabbed a late fifth the Hornets had run out convincing winners.

Vikings Hunted down by York

January 2016

HANDBALL

THE first round of the inaugural North East Handball Tournament took place in York.

However, with Durham University's squad unable to make the trip due to transport problems, Newcastle Vikings and York Hunters were left to battle it out between them.

The Vikings' men went into the day's matches missing a regular goalkeeper, which York duly exploited.

A 16-12 victory in the opening game was later backed up by a 10-6 home win in the second men's match of the day as York grabbed the opportunity to take an early advantage.

However, with York unable to field a full women's team, two friendly mixed men's/women's matches were instead played in between and after those men's fixtures.

The Tyneiders gained a modicum of revenge with a 9-5 success in the first game, while the final game was drawn 12-12.

The second round of the three-way North East tournament will take place at Newcastle Vikings' home venue, Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields, on Saturday, January 30 (2.00-5.00).

The third and final round will be hosted by Durham University at their Queen's Camps Sports Centre in Stockton on Sunday, February 28 (1.00-3.00).

The Vikings set up the tournament as part of their mission to help develop handball in the North East.

It seeks to create a more formal mini-league arrangement and encourage wider participation and more competitive court time for beginners and younger non-league players at the region's up-and-coming clubs.

Goals from centre Robin Devilette and wingers Wiktor Laczny and Gracjan Joppke kept the Vikings in the game early on.

However, the Merseysiders soon began to take advantage of the Vikings' goalkeeping weakness.

Laczny's last-trick plus further first-half goals from Devilette, Kole Viejop-Cabelero and Nicolas Foldager kept the home side going. However, Liverpool were 16-8 up come the break.

The second half continued in a similar vein to the first as Newcastle struggled to threaten Liverpool's shooting accuracy.

Half player Foldager added five further goals to his personal scoring tally, with Joppke, Devilette, Laczny, Stephan Seidler and a Viejop-Cabelero double also finding the back of the net for the Vikings.

However, it was Newcastle's defensive frailty which proved their downfall as Liverpool Speke Garton ran out convincing winners.

King continued to do her best to keep the Merseysiders at bay with several trademark diving stops between the posts - including a penalty save.

However, Liverpool's powerful attack and assured defence at the other end proved to be the difference between the teams as they restricted the home side to just five goals throughout the second half, including another two Inta penalty strikes.

Half player Foldager added five further goals to his personal scoring tally, with Joppke, Devilette, Laczny, Stephan Seidler and a Viejop-Cabelero double also finding the back of the net for the Vikings.

However, it was Newcastle's defensive frailty which proved their downfall as Liverpool Speke Garton ran out convincing winners.

King continued to do her best to keep the Merseysiders at bay with several trademark diving stops between the posts - including a penalty save.

However, Liverpool's powerful attack and assured defence at the other end proved to be the difference between the teams as they restricted the home side to just five goals throughout the second half, including another two Inta penalty strikes.

Cup not one that cheers the Vikings!

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's team was knocked out of the England Handball League Cup at the first round stage 35-15 by Fulham Hawks at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields.

Goals from centre Stephan Stricker and debutant half-player Johannes Belin initially kept Newcastle on a par with their London opponents before the away team began to open out a lead.

Right - winger Wiktor Laczny scored a hat-trick and half Athbi Almarazouq added to the Vikings' scoreline.

However, by the time Belin and Stricker struck again just before half-time the Hawks had scored double the Vikings' tally to go in 16-8 up at the interval.

Stricker quickly added his third just after the break but, despite further strikes from winger Kole Viejop, Belin and Gracjan Joppke and another Laczny hat-trick, the Vikings were unable to contain the Hawks' attacking plays and much better shooting accuracy.

By the time the final whistle sounded Fulham had rounded off a convincing victory to progress to the quarter-finals.

Teams from Newcastle Vikings (black strip), Durham University and York Hunters who took part in the second round of the North East Handball Tournament at Temple Park Leisure Centre

THE second round of the North East Handball Tournament between Newcastle Vikings, Durham University and York Hunters took place at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre.

The Vikings claimed four wins out of four in the men's and women's matches.

The friendly tournament got underway with Durham University taking on York in a mixed-sex match due to both clubs not being able to field full men's sides, Durham winning 13-8.

Newcastle Vikings' women then scored a brilliant runaway 20-2 win over York Hunters, both teams giving a run-out to two Durham University players.

The Vikings men then beat York's mixed team 17-10 as the home side sought to give more game time to a number of newer and less regular league players in the friendly contest.

In the second women's match of the day, Newcastle switched things around a bit to give several players a go at playing in less familiar positions - but after York took an early two-goal lead the Vikings came back to win 9-3.

The final men's match saw the Vikings run out convincing 16-6 victors over the mixed Durham University side.

Together with Newcastle's league victory over the combined Leeds Hornets/Huddersfield men's team earlier in the day, the regional tournament wins were a welcome return to winning ways for the Vikings men's and women's teams. They also represented revenge for the Vikings after York Hunters had won both men's games and one of the two mixed-sex matches in last month's first round, which Durham were unable to make.

Newcastle's men went into their game against Liverpool Speke Garton without a recognised goalkeeper, Kasper Olesen volunteering to put himself in the firing line.

Goals from centre Robin Devilette and wingers Wiktor Laczny and Gracjan Joppke kept the Vikings in the game early on.

However, the Merseysiders soon began to take advantage of the Vikings' goalkeeping weakness.

Laczny's last-trick plus further first-half goals from Devilette, Kole Viejop-Cabelero and Nicolas Foldager kept the home side going. However, Liverpool were 16-8 up come the break.

The second half continued in a similar vein to the first as Newcastle struggled to threaten Liverpool's shooting accuracy.

Half player Foldager added five further goals to his personal scoring tally, with Joppke, Devilette, Laczny, Stephan Seidler and a Viejop-Cabelero double also finding the back of the net for the Vikings.

Leeds squads have no answer to the Vikings

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's team claimed their biggest win of the season with a morale-boosting 31-19 victory over Leeds University in their England Handball North Regional Development League encounter at the Leeds Futsal Arena.

Half-player Johannes Belin got the Vikings going with an early brace, soon followed by a Peter Schichtel hat-trick and double from winger Viktor Laczky.

Further goals were quickly added by half Atthil Almarzouq, line-player Craig Swanson, winger Gracjan Joppek and centre David Topacho before Belin claimed his third in what was a dominant first-half attacking display backed up by solid defending.

Winger Matthew Lamb, a Stephan Stricker double strike from the back-court and centre Schichtel's fourth extended Newcastle's lead to 16-7 by half-time.

The second half, however, turned into a more evenly-balanced affair - but the Vikings kept fighting on.

Swanson lobbed the goalkeeper for his second before Topacho, Almarzouq, Laczky, Belin, Schichtel and Stricker all added to their tallies.

Newcastle Vikings (dark strip) in action during their league clash with Leeds Carnegie at Temple Park position and player-coach Jonathan Bastin each struck twice to round off an emphatic 31-19 victory.

The Vikings followed up that league success by coming from behind to snatch a late 17-16 victory against Leeds Carnegie at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre.

The Leeds Beckett University side, lacking any substitutes, took the advantage early on as the Vikings struggled to get into their stride.

However, Belin's brace and a Stricker strike from the back-court eventually got the home side's scoreboard ticking over before line-player Holger Schulz got in on the act to level things up.

Half-player Belin claimed his second from the penalty line to keep Newcastle in touch before, with the scores level at 6-6, goalkeeper Daniel Walsh made two ultimately crucial penalty saves at the other end.

Carnegie nevertheless managed to open out a narrow 9-7 lead by the half-time break following Belin's fourth goal.

Centre Robin Devlente opened the second-half scoring with a quick hat-trick, split only by Belin's fifth.

Adam Moberley then struck his first goal of the season from the right wing before Bastin and Schichtel each broke through from the back-court.

With Carnegie temporarily down to six players, Belin's brace helped the home side take the lead for the first time in the match at 16-15.

Despite Carnegie levelling it up again in a tense final few minutes, a brilliant double save at point-blank range from goalkeeper Walsh prevented them from taking the lead again before Devlente grabbed the late winner and the Vikings held on to the final whistle.

Vikings hit back to down Hawks

HANDBALL

A MUCH-IMPROVED second-half display saw Newcastle Vikings' ladies fight back to beat Manchester's NEM Hawks 33-20 in their England Handball North Regional Development League match at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre.

The Vikings struggled to find their way in the first half against an NEM Hawks team who rattled up with just six players.

Led by Great Britain international winger Lucy Acres, the Hawks took an early two-goal lead before half player Alina Inta got the Vikings going.

Young winger Krystina Coulson scored her first Vikings goals since coming up from the junior side.

Winning Ogbee added a brace from the line position either side of a further three. Inta back-court strikes.

However, Newcastle were poor defensively and struggled to contain the dynamic movement of the Hawks' attacking plays and were indebted to good saves from on-form goalkeeper Andrea King to keep them in the game.

Half-judyta Turuliska and line-player Sandra Christie then scored twice each before another Inta double and one from winger Meghan Acres helped the Vikings pull back and take a 14-13 lead into the half-time break.

King pulled off a fantastic right-footed save in the dying seconds to deny the Hawks a leveller.

The Vikings found their fight and greater defensive tightness in the second period as another Turuliska brace and breakaway strikes from Ogbee, Christie and Inta helped them open up a six-goal advantage.

The Hawks switched their goalkeepers around but could not prevent Coulson claiming her third and an Inta penalty shot before debutant Lou Mierthling was on the scorelines from the wing.

Inta roared up her 11th goal in a brilliant match-winning haul. Acres stretched the lead before Turuliska's double, Mierthling and Christie rounded things off.

Tournament title stays in the hands of Vikings

NEWCASTLE Vikings' ladies reclaimed their Tyneside Handball Tournament crown as the University of Strathclyde won the men's competition in a fast-paced day of action.

Hosted by Newcastle Vikings Handball Club, the annual tournament - now in its third year - was staged at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre.

It welcomed men's and women's teams from across northern England and Scotland competing in group stages, play-offs and finals.

Newcastle Vikings' men took on the newly-established Sunderland side, combined teams from York Hunters-Durham University and Edinburgh-Newcastle, the University of Strathclyde and reigning two-time champions Glasgow.

The Vikings' women were up against Durham University, the University of Leeds and Edinburgh.

Edinburgh's draw with Durham University in the last of the women's group-stage fixtures saw them win through to the final on goal difference.

Durham had to settle for third place ahead of the University of Leeds.

However, Newcastle's ladies were too strong for Edinburgh in the final as they ran out 17-10 winners in the highest-scoring match of the day.

Vikings' half-player Alina Inta claimed the tournament top-scorer prize with 13 goals.

A feisty derby play-off encounter saw Sunderland beat Newcastle 9-7 for third place to gain revenge for the Vikings' group-stage victory, while the Edinburgh-Newcastle team overcame York Hunters-Durham University 6-5 in the fifth-place decider.

HANDBALL

Glasgow's men had gone through the group stages unbeaten and seemed set for their third Tyneside win in a row.

However, an evenly-matched final saw their Scottish student neighbours hold them to an 8-8 draw to take it to a sudden-death penalty shoot-out to decide the title for the second year.

This time, however, Glasgow were to be denied as the University of Strathclyde goalkeeper's second save gave them a 6-5 shoot-out victory.

Strathclyde's Chris Mowat and Glasgow's Yohann Gloguen were the clear top-scorers in the men's competition for the second year running with 26 and 21 goals respectively.

Vikings have a hand in contest beside the sea

NEWCASTLE Vikings Handball Club's men and women competed in the fourth British Beach Handball Championships in Poole, Dorset.

The Vikings' women were returning for their second year while a combined Sunderland and Newcastle men's team also ventured south to compete together as the fantastically named Sandcastles United.

Action-packed and fast-paced, beach handball is played on a smaller court than indoor handball with only four players on court at any one time and continuous rolling substitutions.

The 13-team women's competition got underway with Newcastle's women taking on Cambridge in group two, the Vikings narrowly losing the first half 6-5 and the second 10-6 for a 2-0 defeat.

They picked up their game to win their next match against Reading Lions, victorious 2-1 in a penalty shoot-out after winning the first half 8-3 and narrowly losing the second half 12-10.

However, their final group game against a strong Oxford Blues team resulted in another 2-0 loss as they went down 19-14, 13-8.

HANDBALL SPECIAL

The Vikings finished third in their group on two points, behind Oxford (six) and Cambridge (five).

The men's group one matches began with a tough start for Sandcastles United as they lost the first half heavily against Ruislip West London Eagles 21-10 - but they fought hard in a much closer 13-14 second half.

Having started to get to grips with the tactics of the beach game, they then surpassed expectations to narrowly win their second match 2-0 over champions Brighton Flyers, claiming the first half 12-11 with a golden goal and then 13-11 in the second period.

Sandcastles then won both of their final group matches in penalty shoot-outs after the half-winning points were shared.

A big 23-12 first half win over Southampton was levelled by a 13-10 second-half defeat before they came back to prevail 6-5 in the shoot-out.

Their Coventry match was also drawn 14-13, 15-7 before winning the deciding shoot-out 5-3 as Sandcastles finished the group on six points.

The second day of action saw an early start for the Vikings' women, drawn to play a Cup qualifier match against London's Olympia.

However, a 13-7, 12-11 defeat meant they dropped into the second-tier plate competition.

Newcastle then scored their first 2-0 match victory in the quarter-final against home-town favourites Poole Phoenix 8-5, 19-7.

However, they then came up against Oxford Blues again in the semi-final, narrowly losing the first half 13-12 and then 15-6 in the second half as injuries and tiredness took their toll.

The Sandcastles men went into their Cup quarter-final with a further depleted team of just five players - so it was always going to be an uphill struggle as they were also knocked out by Oxford Blues 18-10, 20-15.

The men's tournament was ultimately won by guest Dutch team Hiekkä Hauskaa as London GD retained the women's cup against Poole Phoenix II.

Brighton beat London GD in the men's plate final while Oxford Blues went on to win the women's plate.

Vikings hand out a defeat in derby

NEWCASTLE Vikings Handball Club's men made a winning start to the new England Handball North Regional Development League season.

They fought back from going behind in a tense derby encounter to snatch a 16-13 home victory as Sunderland's goalkeeper saw red in the final minutes.

The match at the Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields was the first time the two North East sides had met in a competitive league game, having only previous played each other in friendly tournaments.

Sunderland made a flying start as centre Dimitrios Pappas fired them in front inside the first minute - but the Vikings soon pulled back through captain David Topacho.

The two sides then continued to trade blows throughout an evenly-matched first half in which both sides struggled with their shooting accuracy against solid defences and good saves by both goalkeepers.

Goals from former Newcastle wingers Jack Woods and Wiktor Laczny plus a Pappas hat-trick just kept Sunderland in front.

Topacho also picked up another three interspersed by goals from centre Mohammed Ghuloum and line-player Craig Swanson's brace.

Ghuloum levelled again as the interval beckoned before another former Vikings player Athbi Almarzouq nudged Sunderland 9-8 in front just before the break.

With the momentum in the away team's favour, Pappas extended Sunderland's advantage at the start of the second period with another hat-trick of goals before captain Woods picked up his fourth.

However, centre Vlad Cocos' strike, a breakaway goal from winger Matthew Lamb and a Ghuloum double ensured Newcastle always stayed in touch.

Stand-in Vikings goalkeeper Jonathan Bastit's long throw then enabled winger Kole Viejo-Caballero to level the game.

That set the tone for a tense finale as Sunderland began to tire, Viejo-Caballero soon grabbing his second to edge Newcastle in front for the first time in the match.

With two minutes to go Sunderland goalkeeper Gracjan Joppek committed a cynical foul outside the area and was sent off.

Captain Topacho promptly fired in the consequent penalty strike before Ghuloum scored again to seal a well-fought comeback victory for the Vikings.

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men finished in fourth spot in the annual Edinburgh International Tournament.

A slow start saw them go down 10-2 in their first group game to London's Olympia before then drawing 5-5 in the second match against hosts Edinburgh.

However, the Vikings grew into the tournament by beating Dublin International 8-6 to advance to the next stage of the competition, where they faced Strathclyde-Glasgow University in the quarter-finals.

With the pace of the game becoming even quicker in the knockout stages, Newcastle pulled out an early lead thanks in part to the heroics of goalkeeper Daniel Walsh - who kept them in the game and helped ensure the Vikings held out for a 6-4 victory.

The semi-final saw Newcastle face fellow group team Dublin again.

Much like the Vikings, Dublin had also had a slow start to the tournament but grew into it - becoming stronger and stronger.

In the end they were too good for a Vikings side which had the least amount of players in Edinburgh and fatigue began to set in despite them putting up a good fight. The final score was 10-5 to Dublin.

The defeat to the Irish side meant Newcastle would face the hosts Edinburgh for the second time in the third and fourth-place play-off.

The game started off at a fast pace, Edinburgh taking an early lead before the Vikings pull back goals.

However, the hosts then pulled away for a 12-4 success.

Vikings' women as they suffered a frustrating 16-34 defeat at Merseyside club Peninsula in Warrington.

The hosts opened out an early lead as the Vikings sought to find their feet and cope with their offensive moves, half-player Judyta Turuliska's double eventually getting Newcastle on the scoresheet.

A quick-fire treble from centre Rebecka Östergren and fellow back-court player Alina Inta briefly closed the gap to four to give the Vikings hope of an unlikely comeback.

However, despite further goals from Turuliska, Östergren and line-player Maren Liane, the Vikings continued to struggle to break through the well-drilled home defence line and by half-time Peninsula's more clinical shooting accuracy had gained them a 16-8 advantage.

The second half continued in a similar vein, Inta dominating the Vikings' scoring with a further six strikes including two from the penalty line interspersed by goals from Östergren and captain Sandra Christke.

However, as Newcastle began to tire the home side, exploited several breakaway plays to secure victory.

Leeds hand out a shock defeat as Vikings fail to hold on to a lead

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men team let slip a five-goal advantage as Leeds Carnegie came back to snatch a 23-25 win in the England Handball North Regional Development League match at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields.

In a closely-fought encounter, Vikings' captain David Topacho opened the scoring, soon followed by goals from fellow back-court players Mohammed Ghuloum, James Porter, Topacho's second, Johannes Belim and a Stephan Stricker brace.

However, the Leeds side levelled things up at 7-7 before the teams traded goals for a while, winger Thomas Harrison's neat job of the goalkeeper on the break and centre Ghuloum's double keeping Newcastle just in front before Carnegie nudged ahead themselves.

Half players Porter, Topacho and Stricker helped pull Newcastle back as the scores were tied 13-13 at the interval. The Vikings' captain again led the way at the start of the second half as the home side opened out a seemingly decisive five-goal lead.

Topacho's hat-trick, one from line-player Craig Swanson and another two from Ghuloum and Belim's second from the back court were complemented by good saves at the other end by Newcastle goalkeepers Daniel Walsh and Mark Harrison.

However, Leeds gradually clawed their way back as Newcastle began to falter.

Following further strikes from Stricker and Topacho, Carnegie levelled the game at 22-22 with just minutes to go.

The away side then grabbed three quick goals as the Vikings' frustrations showed.

Winger Matthew Lamb's breakaway effort on the final whistle proved a mere consolation.

Östergren's quick-fire hat-trick and Blessing Odeh's goal from the right-wing put Newcastle in the ascendancy again at the start of the second period.

Inta added two more penalties, while centre Östergren had notched up eight goals for the game before injury forced her off.

The Vikings had just six players for the closing minutes and were unable to prevent Leeds claiming victory despite a last-minute strike from Krystina Coulson.

Vikings court success with league win treble

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's and women's teams both claimed impressive England Handball North Regional Development League victories at Manchester.

Playing at the National Cycling Centre on a court in the middle of the former Commonwealth Games velodrome, captain David Topacho quickly got the Vikings ball rolling, soon followed by goals from line player Holger Schulz and half Stephan Stricker as Newcastle opened up an early lead.

Manchester levelled before winger Matthew Lamb and back-court players Mohammed Ghuloum and Peter Schichtel added their names to the Vikings' scoresheet.

Topacho and Ghuloum then each claimed further strikes to give Newcastle a 9-3 half-time advantage. Lamb, Ghuloum and Schichtel's brace extended Newcastle's lead in the second half as Manchester briefly threatened a comeback.

However, with the defence line remaining firm, further goals from Stricker, Schulz, Topacho, Ghuloum and Schichtel sealed the 18-12 success for the Vikings men.

The women then took centre stage and Newcastle raced into an early lead through half-players Judy Turuliska (2) and Alina Inta and a Maren Liane hat-trick.

Captain Sandra Christke added a brace from the line position, Inta and Turuliska each netting twice more and Christke adding her third, while a solid defensive performance and good saves from goalkeeper Andrea King restricted the home side to just five first-half goals at the other end - 13-5 the interval score-line.

It was Manchester who came out the more determined immediately after the break with four quick goals before centre Rebecca Ostergen and Liane's double helped to settle the Vikings' nerves.

Inta fired in three more either side of two Liane penalties, Turuliska re-found the net with another brace, Ostergen and Christke then rounding off a 25-16 result to give Newcastle's women a welcome first victory over Manchester.

They followed up that success with a powerful display to thrash Leeds Carnegie 26-10 at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre and make it two wins in two days.

Christke was on fire from the start as her four quick strikes from the line position and half Judy Turuliska's brace opened out a commanding lead for the Vikings in their second England Handball North Regional Development League match of the weekend.

Goalkeeper King pulled off several good one-on-one saves, Maren Liane scored from the right wing, Inta and Ostergen each added doubles and Turuliska scored her third to give the home side a 12-7 half-time advantage.

The Vikings' defensive solidity was more impressive in the second period, restricting the Leeds Beckton University side to just three goals.

Ostergen powered in three of her own from the line position while Inta claimed a brace before Ostergen reverted to centre and shot in another three.

King made a diving penalty save to thwart the Carnegie goalkeeper's effort before having a penalty goal of her own disallowed while Turuliska, Inta and Christke each scored again.

Youngster Rebecca Johanson then fired in a long-range cracker to mark her Vikings' league debut in style and Turuliska rounded off Newcastle's 26-10 victory.

The women's march saw the Leeds students take an early lead before Maren Llane's brace from the right half position put the Vikings ahead - and from there the Tyne-siders never looked back.

Ogbue's second was quickly followed by three more from Christie, further effort from Ousegren and Llane and then a brilliant hat-trick of flying wing strikes from an on-fire Ogbue as the Leeds side struggled to contain the Vikings' attacking plays.

Turulska, Llane and Christie rounded off the first half's scoring as the Vikings went into the break with a big 16-6 lead.

Turulska's hat-trick of goals soon extended Newcastle's advantage at the start of the second half.

However, while the defence line remained solid, in taking the opportunity to experiment with positional changes the Vikings seemed to lose some of their attacking flow and shooting accuracy.

Ousegren nevertheless picked up three from the line position, split only by Ogbue's sixth in arguably her best game for the Vikings.

Turulka matched her sixth from centre while Llane added another before going off injured - leaving Newcastle short-handed for the final minutes of the game.

However, it did not prevent Ousegren and Turulka adding to their tallies as the ladies gained their biggest win of the season so far.

In the men's game, both teams traded goals throughout a fairly even first half. Captain David Topachko again led the way for Newcastle with early goals either side of a brace from centre Muhammad Ghuloum.

Right-half Jonathan Hawn's effort was followed by another Ghuloum brace while strikes from fellow back-court players Stephen Stricker and Topachko were interspersed by goals from wingers Niall Hanagan and Matthew Laid.

Leeds nevertheless just edged the scoring 13-12 at the break.

However, the second period turned out to be a more frustrating affair for the Vikings as they struggled to take their opportunities to keep pace with Carnegie's scoring at the other end.

Craig Swanson scored from the line position, Stricker and Laid picked up their second goals while Ghuloum and Topachko added their fifth strikes before late finishes from wingers Hanagan and Adam Mub-bules. However, the home side ran out clear winners in the end.

Both Vikings teams sit in second place in their league tables.

THE first Tyne and Wear Handball Schools Festival proved a huge success.

Hosted by Newcastle Vikings Handball Club in association with Merley's Handball Coaching, and funded through Tyne and Wear Sport's satellite club grant award, the tournament was played at the Vikings' home match venue Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields.

More than 150 under-13 and under-15 girls and boys took part.

Mortimer Community College and St Wilfrid's RC College made it a victorious double for South Shields schools in the girls' competitions.

Mortimer won all three of their matches over Walbottle Campus (2-1), Whitley Bay High School (4-1), and Churchill Community College (3-1) to take the under-15 title.

In the under-13s St Wilfrid's girls beat Mortimer (2-1), Oxlouse Community Academy (2-0) and Lord Lawson of Beamish Academy (4-0) before drawing with Churchill (0-0). In the boys' competitions both Newcastle's Walbottle Campus One (under-15s) and Gateshead's Lord Lawson of Beamish Academy (under-13s) also went undefeated.

Walbottle's first team defeated Churchill Community College (5-0), their schoolmates Walbottle Campus 2 (5-1) and Whitley Bay High School (3-3) before sealing victory in a last-minute decider against Lord Lawson of Beamish Academy (3-2).

Lord Lawson took the under-13 title in impressive style without conceding a goal in beating Walbottle (3-0), Mortimer Community College (5-0), Churchill (3-0) and Oxlouse Community Academy (2-0).

The winning teams were each presented with an England Handball Association bag of a dozen handballs while the best players from each of the competitions received a Newcastle Vikings Handball Club T-shirt. All the children who took part also received a Vikings wristband.

Scouting of the best talent from the under-15s competitions also saw 20 girls and 20 boys selected to take part in Tyne and Wear county handball trials.

The first round of trials took place at Temple Park Leisure Centre today ahead of the Newcastle Vikings ladies' home league match against Merseyside club Peninsula and the second round of the North East men's and women's friendly league competitions between Newcastle, Sunderland, Durham and York.

Anyone wishing to join the Vikings should go along to junior training sessions on Mondays (7.30pm-8.30pm) at Temple Park Leisure Centre or Wednesdays (1pm-4pm) at Hedleys Sport in Killingworth.

Action from the Vikings' ladies clash against Manchester with the Vikings in the dark strip

Newcastle Vikings' men (dark strip) on the attack against Manchester

Point is, two setbacks for Vikings are so frustrating

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men and women's teams succumbed to agonising one-goal defeats at home in Manchester in England Handball North Regional Development League matches at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre.

It was the second consecutive single-goal league loss in a row for the Vikings' ladies in another close-fought game which never saw either side manage to open up more than a two-goal advantage throughout.

Manchester found the lack of the net first before captain Sandra Christie's clever flick from the edge of the goal area and strikes from wingers Blessing Ogburn and Meghann Acres edged Newcastle in front.

Centre Maren Liane fired in from the penalty line and winger Krystina Cochran and half-backs Jadyta Turulskia and Alina Ima each added their names to the scoresheet before Liane's second put the Vikings ahead 7-3 just before half-time.

However, Manchester quickly retook control at the start of the second half as a somewhat subdued Newcastle seemed to struggle to get into their flow.

Three back-court goals apiece from Turulskia and Liane, coupled with shuffling defensive play, nevertheless ensured they kept in touch.

However, Manchester regained the lead in the closing minutes. Ogburn's second against her former club coming just too late as gave the Vikings time to search for another leveller as the away side just held on for a 10-13 win.

The following men's match was a similarly close and low-scoring encounter.

Captain David Topachos both opened and closed Newcastle's half-half scoring from half-back, fellow back-court players Mohammed Ghuloum and Ioannis Bellin plus wingers Adam Mobberley and Mathew Lamb all finding the back of the Manchester net in between.

However, the away side went into the half-time break with a 7-6 advantage.

Bellin added two more early in the second period either side of Lamb's second and a strike from half-back Stephen Stricker further back-court efforts coming from Topachos' brace and Ghuloum.

Thomas Harrison levelled the scores from the wing again but as the Vikings pushed on the attack Manchester took advantage on the breaks to open their lead again.

Lane strikes from Topachos and Ghuloum were not enough to prevent another frustrating result for the Vikings men - 17-10 the final score.

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men ran out 24-11 home victors over Liverpool Speke Garston in the England Handball North Regional Development League - but the club's ladies were unlucky to fall to their third consecutive single-goal defeat.

A busy day of handball action at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre began with the second round of the under-16 Tyne and Wear trials - 22 girls and 11 boys put through their paces as they push for selection for the first county junior teams.

The Vikings' and Liverpool's women then took to the court for their first league meeting of the season.

The visitors grabbed an early lead before centre Maren Liane fired in a cracking brace to level things up and captain Sandra Christie struck a quick hat-trick from the line position.

The teams continued to trade goals with goalkeeper Andrea King denying Liverpool opening up a lead with several big saves.

The Merseysiders regained the lead early in the second half but Christie's brace soon levelled matters again, clocking up her 13th Vikings league and cup goal in the process.

Newcastle fought well together in defence to keep the pacy Liverpool attacking plays at bay, King continuing to pull off good saves.

At the other end of the court Liane's second penalty was soon followed by strikes from wingers Blessing Ogburn and Acres and half-back Alina Ima to keep the Vikings in touch.

The away side nevertheless managed to open up a two-goal lead going into the final minutes but despite Kristina Coulson's late left-wing brace the Vikings fell agonisingly short - the final score 18-17.

The men's match was a low-scoring slow starter dominated by solid defenders, just 3-2 on the scoreboard after the first 15 minutes with Newcastle's goals coming from centre Mohammed Ghuloum and winger Mathew Lamb.

Ghuloum fired in from the penalty line and Stephen Stricker struck low from the back-court before the Vikings started to assert dominance through winger Niall Flanagan's flying treble, split only by Ghuloum's third.

Right-half Johannes Bellin and winger Kole Viejo-Cabelero rounded off the first half scoring as the Vikings took a 10-5 lead into the half-time break.

A further brace from Flanagan got the second half underway, soon followed by another Ghuloum penalty.

Newcastle were increasingly breaking through the tiring Liverpool defence line.

Vlad Cocos fired in twice and then again after Stricker and captain David Topachos had also exploited the gaps.

Ghuloum scored his fifth and Stricker added another while Lamb's pace on the fast breaks gained him a further brace.

Bellin and Stricker rounded off a much-improved team performance for the Vikings' men and a welcome runaway home victory.

Lion tamers end Vikings' Cup dreams

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's and women's teams were both knocked out of the England Handball League Cup at Reading Lions.

It was always going to be tough for two depleted makeshift Vikings teams, several players having to play out of their usual positions.

The men's semi-final was first up and the Vikings initially kept pace with the bigger more powerful Lions side thanks to right-half Johannes Belin's early brace and one from Matthew Lamb playing in the unfamiliar centre position.

A strong defensive display and good block saves from goalkeeper Mark Harrison between the posts helped keep Reading at bay.

Belin continued to lead the way at the other end of the court, line-players Holger Schulz and Craig Swanson also on target.

However, Reading at half-time had a 16-9 advantage.

The home side continued to stretch out their lead in the second period while Belin's back-court shooting took his personal match tally to 10 for the Vikings.

Lamb also scored twice more on the break and Swanson added a late double from the line position. However, it was an unexpected goal midway through the half from usual goalkeeper Daniel Walsh, playing on the left-wing for the first time, which brought the biggest cheers from the Vikings' players and supporters.

Despite fighting all the way, Newcastle were unable to tame the Lions as Reading progressed through to the final 32-18.

Reading's Lionesses took an early lead in the subsequent women's League Cup quarter-final contest before two acute-angle Eiman ElBanhawy goals from the right-wing and a Sandra Christie strike from the line position soon pulled Newcastle level.

Blessing Ogburn, playing back-court for the first time, then fired into the top corner from right-half to unexpectedly put the Vikings' ladies in front - but Reading's accurate back-court shooting and fast breaks helped them re-take the lead.

Marion Liane struck back for Newcastle with a hat-trick before Ogburn and captain Christie each scored their second goals to round off the first half.

The second period was a lower-scoring affair.

Liane notched a further two, either side of a welcome first Vikings' goal from Malin Wallin.

However, they were unable to keep pace with the Lionesses despite a goal from goalkeeper Andrea King and went down 22-14.

All to play for on final weekend as squads court league title glory

The third round of the North East Handball League took place at York St John's University as part of York Hunters Handball Club's first festival.

The hosts opened on a winning note by defeating Newcastle Vikings men 6-5, a combined Sunderland/Durham University men's team then beating the University of York 8-3.

HANDBALL

Next up was the first of two women's matches between the Newcastle Vikings ladies (featuring guest Sunderland and York Hunters players) and the University of York. The Vikings' team dominated both games, first winning 10-1 and then 11-1 in the second match.

In between, Newcastle's men overcame the University of York 8-6 and Sunderland/Durham triumphed 7-4 against York Hunters.

The final matches saw the Vikings men run out 8-4 victors over Sunderland/Durham before York

Hunters rounded off a successful day of action by being 6-1 winners against their city's university students.

With three points for a win, two for a draw and one for a defeat, and the scores being aggregated across all four rounds of matches, there is still all to play for in the last round of league matches in Durham in April.

Vikings end campaign with defeat

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings Ladies' England North Regional Development League season ended with a 21-14 loss to the unbeaten Liverpool Ladies at the Greenbank Academy.

The hosts made a quick start, opening up an early three-goal lead before Blessing Ogburn's near-post strike from the left wing got the Vikings' ball rolling.

Newcastle closed the gap to two through goals from right-half Alina Inta and captain Sandra Christie from the line position.

However, despite determined defending at the other end of the court and the best efforts of Andrea King between the posts, they were unable to withhold several decisive Liverpool attacks on the fast-break.

Liverpool's goalkeeper, meanwhile, continued to pull off a series of great saves to frustrate the Vikings' shots, two Inta penalties the only other breakthroughs in the first half.

It was 9-5 to the home side at the break.

Liverpool extended their advantage further at the start of the second half but the scoring was more evenly matched thereafter.

Left-half Judyta Turulska finally found her way through the stubborn Merseyside team's defence, line-player Christie picking up a brace either side of another Ogburn goal.

Inta then scored four on the trot, including three consecutive delightful Inta over the Liverpool goalkeeper.

Yet however much the Vikings fought they were unable close the gap.

Turulska's second rounded off Newcastle's scoring.

Sharks show their teeth to hand Vikings a defeat in opening clash of the season

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's team were sent to Coventry to take on the Sharks in their first appearance up in the National League North - and lost 33-24.

It proved to be a tough first half for the Vikings as they struggled to get going and fight off the attacking strength of the more experienced Sharks.

The home side took an early lead but, after a slow start, captain David Topacho struck Newcastle's first goal of the season from the backcourt - soon followed by goals from centre Adam Harwood and line player Julien Eng.

The Vikings continued to fight their way back into the game with further strikes from Topacho, Eng and wingers

HANDBALL

Matthew Lamb and Adam Moberley. However, they could not contain the Sharks on the fast breaks as they continued to concede goals at the other end.

Half-player Topacho added his fourth just before half-time but the Vikings went into the break 18-9 down.

However, Newcastle started the second half the stronger team, scoring several goals on the bounce without reply to close the gap - Topacho's fifth being followed by a quick fire hat-trick from youngster Harwood.

The Great Britain under-20 international, a new Vikings acquisition from Milton Keynes club Oly Cats after moving to study at Durham University, dominated Newcastle's scoring as he notched in 10 second-half goals - including another hat-trick towards the end of the game.

Topacho added another two to his personal tally, while further Lamb and Eng strikes also interspersed Harwood's onslaught.

However, despite the visitors' defending much better, the home side fought back as Newcastle missed a few opportunities in pushing to narrow the Sharks' advantage further.

County's girls show their hand on competitive debut in Chester

THE new Tyne and Wear under-16 girls' handball team took part in their first England North competition at the Northgate Arena in Chester.

The first of their two 20-minute matches was against Staffordshire side Olympia Cannock, who opened up an early six-goal lead before centre Alexandra Inta scored Tyne and Wear's first goal midway through the first half.

However, they were unable to hold off Cannock's attacks and by the time right-half Nazish Amin scored Tyne and Wear's second just before the break they were 20-2 down.

The North Easterners made a better start in the second period as Inta scored her second goal with a great break through the Cannock defence, while goalkeeper Bryony Coldwell made a string of brilliant saves at the other end.

Romanian youngster Inta went on to strike four more, her sixth goal coming on the fast break as she intercepted a pass in defence before dribbling up the court to shoot past the Cannock goalkeeper.

Inta, winger Esther Moffitt, right-half Zoe Barber and line-player Jess Hegarty all went close to further goals as Tyne and Wear tried to find gaps in the Cannock back line - but Cannock ran out 35-7 winners.

Tyne and Wear girls then played a friendly against Shropshire.

The more experienced Shropshire opened up a three-goal lead before Amin struck Tyne and Wear's first goal of the game.

Shropshire extended their advantage to take a 12-1 lead into the half-time break.

Inta scored Tyne and Wear's second early in the second half before her penalty shot struck the post.

Hegarty saw a great scoring opportunity well saved and Amin also missed with a penalty strike as Shropshire prevailed 24-2.

Newcastle Vikings' ladies handball team

Ladies hand out a defeat to hosts

NEWCASTLE Vikings' women's team came from behind to snatch a superb 17-15 victory over hosts Manchester in their first Regional League North game of the season - but the hosts proved too strong for Newcastle's men.

HANDBALL

swift Bjerk hat-trick to put the Vikings ahead for the first time.

It was a solid defensive team performance by the Tynesiders, backed up by an inspired goalkeeping display from Andrea King.

In the men's National League North clash, the home side took an early three-goal lead before centre Julien Eng put the Vikings on the scoresheet.

However, despite further goals from England half players Adam Harwood, Stephan Stricker and captain David Topacho's brace, Newcastle were unable to withstand the swift and powerful attacking plays of their opponents as Manchester opened up a 16-6 advantage by half-time.

Manchester's experience, strength and shooting accuracy continued to dominate in the second period, while a hand injury to Harwood led to him having to sit out the rest of the game.

Wingers Adam Moberley and Matthew Lamb grabbed opportunistic goals to add to further Eng and Stricker strikes from the back court as the Vikings tried their best to fight their way back into the contest.

Etienne Lisse scored his first Vikings' goal from the line position, Eng fired in two penalties and Lamb snatched his second on the rebound - but by the final whistle Manchester's men had run out clear 32-14 winners.

Hosts hand out defeats to Vikings

HANDBALL

IT was a disappointing weekend for Newcastle Vikings' men's and women's teams as they slumped to away league defeats.

Newcastle's women looked to extend their lead at the top of the Regional League North table when they took on the University of Leeds in Bradford.

However, despite a battling defensive performance, the Vikings ladies struggled with their shooting accuracy in trying to find a way past the students' solid backline.

The University of Leeds edged the first half 7-4 and, as the Tynesiders tried to fight back in the second period, the home side countered to triumph 16-9.

Winger Blessing Ogbue top-scored for Newcastle with three goals, centre Maren Liane and half-back Marlen Slinning Goulty bagging a brace each.

Captain Sandra Christke also scored from the back court, Marie Brevet adding one from the other wing.

The Vikings' men team (pictured below) travelled to Wrexham to take on Deva in a National League North fixture. Backcourt players Cedric Le Lay, with five debut goals, and Julien Eng, with four strikes, dominated Newcastle's scoring throughout the first half as the Vikings started well and opened up an early 7-4 lead.

However, Newcastle then lost their way as the home side found its form and charged back to take a 21-9 advantage into the break.

Etienne Lisse picked up a treble early in the second half but, despite further back-court strikes from Eng, Le Lay and captain David Topacho and wingers Robert Thompson and Fedi Boussema grabbing their first goals of the season, it proved to be too much to ask for the Vikings to pull the game back.

Deva went on to claim a resounding 41-17 victory, leaving Newcastle rooted to the bottom of the table.

NEWCASTLE VIKINGS WOMEN: Andrea King (GO), Marie Brevet (1 goal), Marlen Slinning Goulty (2), Maren Liane (2), Emily Birk, Blessing Ogbue (1), Sandra Christke (1), Maria Jose Gonzalez.

County girls take the positives from double defeat

Tyne and Wear's under-16 girls handball team

TYNE and Wear's under-16 girls team showed a huge improvement in their second round of England Handball north regional competition matches in Chester - despite defeats in their league and friendly games.

They started well in their opening league game against the experienced Shropshire Juniors, taking an early lead thanks to Alexandra Inta's back-court shot after a first-minute penalty miss.

That was soon followed by a penalty strike from fellow Romanian Ana Botezatu.

Good defending and fantastic saves from goalkeeper Bryony Coldwell kept the Midlands at bay before they eventually pulled one back - only for captain Alice Atkinson to fire into the top corner from the left-half position.

However, as several players began to miss good scoring chances, Shropshire quickly turned the game around to take a 6-3 advantage into the break.

Shropshire extended their lead early in the second half before right-half Zoe

HANDBALL

Barber broke through to score. However, despite their best efforts - Coldwell making brilliant stops between the posts and two more Botezatu goals at the other end - Tyne and Wear were unable to claw their way back as Shropshire ran out 15-6 winners.

With Nottingham for their scheduled league game to tilt Tyne and Wear a default 10-0 win, the girls then played a friendly against Staffordshire side Olympia Cannock.

Coldwell pulled off big saves in the first minute but was unable to prevent Cannock gradually building up a lead, interspersed with Inta's hat-trick for the Northeasteners.

Cannock were 9-3 up at half-time and began the second half with two more goals.

Tyne and Wear continued to push forward in attack, Botezatu and Inta finding the net.

The Romanian duo again combined for a late breakaway goal which Botezatu netted from the rebound after Inta's shot hit the Cannock goalkeeper - but a last-minute penalty sealed Olympia's 14-6 victory.

Nott a bad effort from girls as they run their opponents close

TYNE and Wear's under-16 girls put in two much-improved performances in their third round of England Handball North Regional competition matches in Chester - running their opposition much closer than in previous outings.

The first league game against Nottingham saw the North East team take an early lead through centre Alexandra Inta's double and one from half-player Ana Botezatu.

Fellow half player Zoe Barber fired a great shot into the top corner but Nottingham soon levelled things up again.

However, youngster Inta broke through to score her third and, with goalkeeper Bryony Coldwell making good saves at the other end, Botezatu added her second and Inta's fourth to put Tyne and Wear 7-5 ahead at half-time.

Nottingham replied with three quick goals at the start of the second half but Inta and Botezatu soon put the North Easterners back in front.

The Midlands edged back ahead as Tyne and Wear began to tire but kept pushing on.

Botezatu added a penalty and Barber stole the ball in her own half and dribbled up the court to shoot into the top corner - but despite Inta also scoring a late brace it was not enough as Nottingham ran out 20-13 winners.

The girls' second league match was due to be against Olympia Cannock - but with them cancelling the girls played a friendly game against the experienced Peninsula side instead.

The sides went into the break level at 5-5. Botezatu's hat-trick put Tyne and Wear ahead as the second-half began, but several penalties coupled with two-minute suspensions for Inta and Barber let Peninsula regain the advantage.

Both players came back on to score either side of Botezatu's fifth - but her sixth from the penalty line was in vain as Peninsula prevailed 14-12.

Vikings are better but still on the losing side

NEWCASTLE Vikings men's and women's teams shipped to home defeats despite improved performances in England Handball League matches at South Shields Temple Park Leisure Centre.

The men's National League North match saw the Vikings take on a strong Loughborough University side they had lost heavily to in the away fixture a fortnight before.

This time they put up more of a challenge despite the students again picking up three points with an 11-18 win to leave Newcastle still winless in their first season playing in the higher league.

Right-half Jonathan Bassitt had put Newcastle into an early lead with his first strike of the season.

Centre Julien Eng, right-winger Andrei Ciurea and left half Stephan Stricker also found the net as the Vikings matched their opponents, debutant goalkeeper Pål Jakobsen pulling off excellent saves to keep Loughborough's attacks at bay. However, the university side soon began to find their way through the Vikings' defence.

While Eng fired in another four goals from the back court, sandwiching Cedric Le Lay's goal from the line position, Loughborough went into the half-time break 17-9 ahead.

Eng and Stricker sought to pull the Vikings back into it early in the second half.

Mathew Lamb broke away to score the first of his three opportunities goals, fellow wingers Ciurea and Fedi Boussemma also adding to Newcastle's tally.

By the time captain David Topach and Eng struck again from the back court and Lamb rounded off the Vikings' scoring with his third goal the game was already lost.

Newcastle's women were looking for their first win against Liverpool in the following women's Regional League match.

With the away team missing their regular goalkeeper this seemed a good opportunity to get one over on their opponents.

The Merseysides nevertheless won on the scoreboard first before centre Maren Liane's double and Marlen Sinnig Gouly helped the Vikings back into it.

Goalkeeper Andrea King pulled off a string of big saves but Newcastle struggled to prevent Liverpool centre Ania Wojtowicz from breaking through their defence line.

She led the away team's game and would go on to notch an impressive 12-goal tally for the match. Further first-half goals for the home side came from Alina Inta and Emily Bjørk's penalty. Blessing Ogbue and Marie Brevet firing in from the wings and Sinnig Gouly and Liane again striking from the back court.

Trailing 14-9 at half-time, the Vikings ladies fought back with three quick goals at the start of the second period, captain Sandra Christie netting from the line position.

Bjerk then nabbed her second penalty and Liane her fourth of the game.

Gouly added a brace to her tally with Christie, Brevet, Inta and Ogbue all claiming their second goals of the game.

However, further strikes from Sinnig Gouly, Ogbue, Inta and Liane proved not quite enough as Newcastle rued missed opportunities and Liverpool held on for a well-played 24-22 victory.

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' ladies jumped back to the top of the England Handball Regional League North table with a convincing 35-14 win over Leeds Beckett University.

However, the home side's men held off a Vikings' rights-back to take their National League North contest 24-18.

Captain Sandra Christie set the tone for the ladies' clash early on with two quick goals from the line position before the students pulled one back.

Centre Maren Liane then struck a brace of her own, winger Marie Brevet getting round the back of the defence to fire in either side of one from right-half Marlen Sinnig Gouly as the Vikings began to open up a lead.

Christie bagged another double and half players Emily Bjerk and Alina Inta with a brace added their names to the scoresheet.

Liane then rounded off the first-half scoring with a penalty strike to give Newcastle a 13-4 advantage at the break.

Though Leeds Beckett found the back of the Vikings' net more often in the second half, it was not enough to trouble Newcastle's attacking potency at the other end of the court.

Player of the match Liane and Brevet each notched another five goals, with four more for both Christie and Inta, two from Bjerk, another side of another Stricker effort early in the second half.

Further back-court strikes from captain David Topach and another Eng brace helped the Vikings briefly close the gap - backed up by brilliant saves from Newcastle's Pål Jakobsen between the posts.

Topach and wingers Liane, Ciurea and Boussemma on the double added further efforts for the Vikings.

However, they were unable to narrow the scoreline any further as a late flurry from Leeds Beckett gave the home team their victory at the final whistle.

Sharks show their teeth to see off Vikings' challenge

NEWCASTLE Vikings Handball Club's men returned to action after the festive break looking for a first win of the season against National League North leaders Coventry Sharks at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields.

However, it was not to be as they lost 39-19.

The visitors took an early lead before centre Julien Eng pulled one back and Jonathan Bassitt set winger Matthew Lamb away on the counter-break to fire in a second.

However, despite four further consecutive Eng strikes from the backcourt, the Vikings were unable to stiffle the speed and guile of the Sharks.

Captain David Topach and line-player Cedric Le Lay added their names to the scoresheet but by the half-time whistle Coventry had opened up a convincing 21-8 advantage.

Le Lay and a Stephan Stricker back-court brace gave the Vikings early hope of a fighting comeback at the start of the second half.

While both goalkeepers Daniel Walch

Action from Newcastle Vikings' women's handball team's English League North victory over Manchester

Victory for Vikings is doubly satisfying

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' women completed a first-season double victory over Manchester with a 21-14 win in their Regional League North fixture.

The victory, at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields, took the girls level on points with Liverpool at the top of the table.

However, it was the visitors who sealed the double with a 27-13 success in the men's National League North match before Newcastle's men picked up a welcome first win of the season - defeating York Hunters 24-20 in the North East League.

The men were first on court against a strong Manchester first team.

Newcastle fought well with solid defensive play backed up by great first-half saves from goalkeeper Daniel Walsh and by half-time were still in with a chance at 13-8 down.

However, they struggled to find the net in the second half as Manchester pulled away for a convincing victory.

Julien Eng top-scored for the Vikings with five goals, fellow back-court players Cedric Le Lay, Etienne Lisse and captain David Topachio also on the scoresheet together with line-player Adam Moberley and a hat-trick from winger Matthew Lamb.

In a low-scoring first half of the women's game, dominated by tight defence lines and great saves from both goalkeepers, Manchester took an early lead before right-winger Katerina Gibson equalised with her first senior Vikings goal.

The away side then opened up a two-goal advantage.

Half-backs Alina Inta with two and one each from Marlen Slinning Gouly and Emily Bjerk kept Newcastle in touching distance before the Vikings took advantage of a Manchester two-minute suspension to draw level 7-7 at half-time through winger Marie Brevet and centre Maren Liane.

Blessing Ogbee fired Newcastle ahead from the right wing at the start of the second half before the Vikings' back-court players took control to stretch their advantage with pin-point shooting from distance.

Inta's treble saw her pass 100 league and cup goals for the club, while Liane also added three more to her tally and Bjerk another, with goalkeeper Andrea King pulling off a series of double saves at the other end.

Captain Sandra Christie got in on the act with a hat-trick from the line position and Brevet added her second before another double from Liane clinched the victory.

Newcastle then gave a run-out to several less-regular players in their opening friendly North East League fixture of the season, coming away with a morale-boosting victory.

York Hunters had raced into an early lead before the Vikings pulled back to go into the break 12-10 in front, a scoreline matched in the second half as the Vikings eventually ran out 24-20 winners.

Young Vikings celebrate a first win

NEWCASTLE Vikings' junior side enjoyed a first win of the season in a friendly mini-tournament against Scottish club Tryst 77, although the Cumberland-based side went away with the honours.

The round-robin tournament at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre featured a mixed team of the Vikings' junior players.

It included seven girls from the Tyne and Wear under-16 side, taking on the year two and year four age group girls of visiting former British champions Tryst 77.

Newcastle's Juniors narrowly lost 8-6 to Tryst 04 in the opening game before the more experienced Tryst 02 team overcame their younger clubmates 18-3 and the Vikings 14-5.

However, the Vikings team scored a much-welcomed 7-3 victory over Tryst 04 in the return round of matches. Alexandra Inta netting her second hat-trick of the day and Ana Botetatu and Tahura Udin each scoring twice.

Tryst 02 then rounded off an unbeaten competition with another double victory in defeating Tryst 04 11-5 and the Vikings 12-3.

With three points for a win, two for a draw and one for a loss, Tryst 02 won the tournament with 12 points and a +39 goal difference.

The Vikings were second on six points and a +16 goal difference just ahead of Tryst 04 - also on six points but with an inferior +23 goal difference.

Roaring Lions hand out a National Shield loss to the Vikings

A SECOND-HALF turnaround saw Newcastle Vikings' men knocked out of the National Shield competition 28-22 at the quarter-final stage by Reading Lions at Temple Park in South Shields.

In the first half Newcastle played some of their best team handball of the season as they built a somewhat unexpected lead in looking to avenge last year's away defeat.

Centre Julien Eng's early strike started the Vikings' scoring, he soon adding another in between goals from half-players Etienne Lisse and Cedric Le Lay.

An Eng hat-trick put the home side 7-5 ahead midway through the half, goalkeeper Pål Jakobsen pulling off a series of brilliant saves to deny Reading's attacking plays.

Line-player Adam Moberley, captaining the side for the first time, also got in on the act and Le Lay and Lisse each notched twice more.

HANDBALL

Three more from Eng took his tally up to eight before Moberley's second sent Newcastle into the half-time break 16-13 up.

However, the Lions roared back strongly at the start of the second period as they began to find gaps in the Newcastle defence.

Despite further back-court strikes from Lisse and Eng's brace, the Vikings struggled to find the net at the other end.

Reading edged in front at 20-19 and while the Vikings fought hard they were unable to prevent the Lions from pulling further ahead.

Right-winger Bogdan Ciurea added his name to the scoresheet but by the time Eng struck his 11th goal of the game and Le Lay another it was too little too late as Reading went through.

Lady Vikings victorious to keep alive title dreams

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' women's team ran out clear 28-16 winners over bottom side Leeds Beckett University in their English Regional League North encounter at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields.

The Vikings took the court looking for a slip win to narrow their goal difference gap with the University of Leeds at the top ahead of their crunch clash this month.

Usual winger Marie Brevet quickly took the opportunity of playing in the half position to get them off to the perfect start, soon followed by back-court strikes from captain Alina Inta either side of one from winger Krystina Coudson in her first game of the season.

A topsy-turvy first half saw the two teams continually vie for the helping to edge Newcastle 9-8 in front at half-time.

The second half, however, saw the Vikings gradually open up a strong advantage.

Inta and Gouly struck in quick succession before Brevet added four more to her tally, Gonzalez and Coudson also each netting again.

Leeds Beckett changed their tactics to try to mark the Newcastle captain out of the game but Inta's power and precision from the penalty line helped her to a further three goals, while centre Gouly also broke through Beckett's defence line for three more of her own.

Brevet's breakaway brace took her to seven for the game, Gonzalez pivoted to strike her third and the victory was wrapped up by player-of-the-match Inta's eighth and Gouly's seventh.

With Liverpool averaging last month's defeat to Manchester to jump to the top, the Vikings' result places Newcastle's women just one point behind the Merseysiders and level on points with the University of Leeds, who hold a 10-better goal difference.

The Vikings now face both of the top sides this month in what look set to be two tough end-of-season title-deciding matches as the league battle goes down to the wire.

They take on University of Leeds at Temple Park on Saturday, April 14 (11.00) before travelling to Liverpool a week later.

THE 2018 Tyne and Wear Handball Schools Games saw three south-of-Tyne schools crowned champions at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields.

The morning's girls' under-13 matches, each lasting ten minutes, produced particularly high-scoring games.

Both Sunderland's Castle View Enterprise Academy and South Shields' St Wilfrid's RC College picked up impressive 12-0 wins over Walbottle Campus.

Wallsend's Churchill Community Academy also notched an 8-0 scoreline over the Newcastle school.

St Wilfrid's went on to win the under-13 girls' competition, remaining unbeaten in their three matches.

Washington's Oxclose Community Academy also went undefeated in winning the under-15 girls' competition with two wins and a draw.

They took the gold medals with a close-fought 1-0 victory over runners-up St Wilfrid's in the final match.

North Shields' John Spence High School finished close behind in third place ahead of Walbottle Campus.

In the afternoon's boys' matches, St Wilfrid's under-13s again scored the biggest victory of all the games with an 11-3 victory over Walbottle Campus.

The boys' under-15 competition went down to the wire and was ultimately decided on goal difference.

Washington-based Biddick Academy's 7-0 victory over Churchill Community Academy in the penultimate match helped them to a +10 goal difference, which proved enough to pip Walbottle Campus - who could only beat Boldon School 3-1 in the last game of the day for an aggregate +7 goal difference.

Boldon School's 5-1 success over Churchill proved decisive in gaining them third place.

Organisers of the event, were Tyne and Wear Sport and Newcastle Vikings Handball Club.

A Vikings' spokesman said: "It was a great day of competitive handball."

All the champions now go on to take part in the North East Regional Handball Finals on Thursday, April 26, also at Temple Park.

Double delight for victorious Vikings

NEWCASTLE Vikings' women's and men's teams both scored convincing North East Friendly League wins over the University of York at Temple Park Leisure Centre.

The Vikings' ladies took the opportunity to give under-16 half-player Zoe Barber a first run-out in the senior side and club debuts to new back-court players Caroline Steinhagen and Ingrid Misund in a shortened 2 x 20-minutes match.

Line player Maria Jose Gonzalez opened the scoring with her first goal for the club, soon followed by strikes from centre Steinhagen and winger Blessing Ogbue.

The university side pulled one back but two more from Gonzalez either side of one from half Maren Liane put Newcastle 6-1 up at the break.

Newcastle then ran away with it in the second half, scoring another 12 unanswered goals as York rarely troubled the Vikings' solid defence.

Gonzalez and Steinhagen both took their personal tallies up to five apiece, Misund scored her first Newcastle goal, winger Emily Bjerk notched three on the break and Liane also netted two more late on as the Vikings rounded off a 18-1 victory.

The men's game saw the Vikings take the first half 16-11 with centre Julien Eng claiming four, half Cerdie Le Lay, line player Adam Moberley and winger Matthew Lamb each scoring trebles - while fellow winger Bogdan Clurea added a brace and line-player Craig Swanson also netted.

The second-half was, however, much more one-sided as the Vikings ran away in dominant style.

Le Lay's fourth was followed by one from guest women's player Maren Liane.

Eng took his tally to seven with Clurea and half Etienne Lisse also both scoring another three.

Swanson grabbed his second, while Fedi Boussemer also found the net late on and Moberley's double rounded off a 33-13 victory.

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' women's handball team was crowned England Handball Regional League North champions after an 18-13 victory over Liverpool at Greenbank Sports Academy.

The Vikings went into their title-deciding final league game of the season knowing they were guaranteed a best-of-two finish after the University of Leeds forfeited the previous weekend's rearranged fixture.

However, they would have to beat Liverpool for the first time in their four English Handball League seasons to snatch the title from the Merseysiders grasp.

Centre Maren Liane got Newcastle off to the perfect start with an early goal from the back court.

However, Liverpool took advantage of defensive line infringements to score three consecutive well-taken penalties courtesy of Malgoria Janus.

The Vikings soon pulled back to level through right-winger Marie Brevet's powerful shot into the top-corner and Liane's second from the line position.

The two teams continued to trade blows throughout the first half as left-half Ingvild Misund and Liane broke through the home defence and Emily Bjerk fired into the bottom corner from the right wing to keep the Vikings on a par.

However, with goalkeeper Andrea King pulling off two penalty saves, late goals from Maria Gonzalez pivoting on the line and right-half Alina Inta sent Newcastle into the break with a narrow 8-7 lead.

The second half started in a similar vein with Liane netting either side of Misund's second. Head coach Maren Slinning Gouly then got in on the act to beat the Liverpool goalkeeper herself, while King saved her third penalty at the other end as the Vikings' defence held firm to thwart the home side's attacks.

With added impetus, Newcastle gradually opened up their advantage through further Inta and Liane back-court strikes, Bjerk's wing shot found its way under the goal keeper and player-of-the-match Gouly broke through for her second.

Inta struck her third and season-top-scorer Liane rounded off the scoring with her seventh of the match before the final whistle sent the Vikings into elation.

The triumph saw Newcastle Vikings jump to the top of the table and unexpectedly take their first league title with an unassailable 20-point lead over Liverpool and the University of Leeds.

The Tynesiders then went into battle in the promotion play-offs, narrowly losing out 16-14 to Loughborough University's first team in a tight North-Midlands semi-final play-off match at Oldham Leisure Centre.

THE North East Regional Schools Handball Games Finals took place at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields.

Two county-winning schools representing Northumberland, Tyne and Wear and the Pres Valley competed for the under-15 and under-13 boys' and girls' titles.

The under-15 competitions developed into a battle between Tyne and Wear and the Pres Valley.

Washington's Oxclose Community Academy girls won all three of their matches without conceding a single goal against Harlepool's High Tunstall College of Science.

Another Washington school, Biddick Academy took the boys' honours after winning their first three games before High Tunstall gained a narrow late consolation victory.

South Shields' St Wilfrid's RC College similarly won their first three games in the under-13 girls' competition to secure the title before falling to defeat in their second match against Northumberland's Richard Coates C of E Middle School.

High Tunstall, meanwhile, picked up two wins over Richard Coates to claim the runners-up spot.

The boys' under-13 competition went down to the wire before High Tunstall defeated Oxclose Community Academy 7-6 in the last match of the day for their decisive third victory.

Runners-up Oxclose had earlier scored two convincing victories over Richard Coates, while the Northumberland school's sole success had come over eventual champions High Tunstall.

The champions were presented with their cups and medals by the England Handball Association's north regional delivery manager Andy Clark.

He said: "I was impressed with the standard and competitiveness of the play throughout the day."

The region's four winning schools now go on to challenge for English national schools honours in Worcester on the weekend of June 9 and 10.

VIKINGS' GIRLS WIN NORTH OF THE BORDER

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings Handball Club's women's team started the new campaign where they left off last season - by picking up their third trophy of a successful year at the Tom Cooper Handball Tournament in East Kilbride.

Newcastle's men's team, competing in this fourth annual pre-season tournament for the second time and giving a run-out to a few less regular players, had a tough morning - going down heavily 13-4 to Dundee, 16-4 to Livingston and 18-1 to Cumbernauld-based Tryst 77.

While they improved in the afternoon's matches, the Vikings' lads could not quite pull off a win - losing 12-6 to Edinburgh and 10-8 to hosts FK82.

In between, the Vikings' women, featuring two guest players from York City Hunters and the local Scottish sides due to a late withdrawal, also lost their opening match in the three-way ladies exhibition tournament 16-7 to a strong EK Select team featuring several Edinburgh and Dundee handballers.

However, a better performance and switch of attacking formation to two line players paid off as they came from behind to defeat Tryst 77 12-9 in their second game - putting them through to the final and a re-match against the EK Select team.

Another change of tactics to a 5-1 defensive formation to mark the EK Select team's play-maker out of the game worked wonders in the decider.

The Vikings stayed strong at the Vikings kick off season in style

NEWCASTLE Vikings Handball Club's men returned to winning ways with a morale-boosting 27-20 victory over the University of Leeds in their opening match of the England Handball Regional League North season in Bradford.

The two sides took their time getting into their stride in an evenly-matched first half.

Newcastle took an early lead before the students took advantage of a two-minute Vikings' suspension to pull back and level the game 10-10 at half-time.

Newcastle's back-court players Julien Eng and Pablo Docampo led the way with five and three goals respectively.

Winger Adam Mobberley, line Ben Andrews and half Fedi Boussema also found the net.

The half-time team talk helped the Vikings to pull together and address a few errors.

It clearly did the trick as they quickly opened up a four-goal advantage on the restart.

With the defensive line staying stronger at the other end, two two-minute suspensions for Leeds players helped the Vikings push on further and extend their lead to seven points.

They then did well to hold on to that through to the final whistle.

Eng fired in another seven strikes on his way to claiming the first Kafeneon Player of the Match Award of the season from club sponsors.

Docampo added five more of his own, with Mobberley and Andrews each picking up a brace and winger Robert Thompson also adding his name to the scoresheet.

■ A DECISIVE first-half offensive from University of Leeds left Newcastle Vikings Handball Club's women's side with too much to do as they slumped to a 24-13 defeat at Bradford.

The Vikings now lie in third place in the England Handball Regional League North table behind Liverpool and the University of Leeds.

A depleted Vikings go out of the Shield

NEWCASTLE Vikings' depleted women's team was knocked out of the England Handball National Shield 24-17 by Midlands Regional League side Northampton.

Played at Cranfield University near Bedford, the hosts got off the mark first - but the Vikings soon pulled level through goals from line player María José González, right-half Alina Inta and young right-winger Katerina Gibson - only her second for the senior team.

Centre Marien Goulty suffered a broken thumb but, without any substitutes available, she had to battle on - switching out to the wing with Marie Thompson moving inside.

Inta's resulting penalty strike briefly edged the Vikings in front before Northampton regained the lead.

Thompson nevertheless revelled in the half position, quickly scoring a hat-trick to bring the game all square again.

Backed up by good saves from in-form goalkeeper Andrea King, the Vikings were frustrating the bigger, powerful home side.

Despite a shoulder injury to back-court player Rosa Larcy, the two teams continued to trade goals for the rest of the half, Inta deftly lobbing the opposing goalkeeper and Goulty defying her injury with a left-handed goal.

Thompson fired in her fourth and Inta did likewise from the penalty line to take the sides into the half-time break at 11-11.

The interval, however, affected Newcastle's momentum as Northampton started with four quick-fire goals before Inta and González had the Vikings' scoreline ticking over again.

However, the home side continued to extend their advantage from the penalty line and on the break as Newcastle began to tire.

Further strikes came from Goulty's second left-hander, Larcy breaking through and Inta's sixth as the Vikings sought to fight back.

However, by the time González rounded off the scoring with her third of the game it was Northants who had run out the winners.

The second half did bring about an improved performance from the Vikings, winger Blessing Ogbee scoring four penalties in a personal best-ever six-goal haul to pick up Newcastle's Kafeneon Player of the Match Award.

Two more back-court strikes from Turulska and one from Liane made for a more evenly-matched contest and helped give credibility to the final scoreline.

Newcastle's women will hope for a much more competitive all-round performance and to quickly gain revenge in the return fixture in a fortnight's time.

1 February

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's team were knocked out of the English National Shield competition 33-25 by Gullford Sabres at the last-eight stage.

Half player Bart Piorowski and wingers Adam Moberley and Matthew Lamb teamed up for the five Newcastle goals.

Piorowski then netted his third in between a pair of double strikes from centre-Julien Eng.

However, the Tyneiders were unable to hold the home side as the Sabres opened up a 17-10 half-time advantage.

Eng continued with another brace at the start of the second half, soon adding his seventh after further counters from Piorowski and Lamb and another sandwiched by two strikes from half Fedi Boussema as the Vikings thought to claw their way back. Captain Moberley and Boussema each scored again, two breakaway goals from Lamb taking his tally to five.

Backed up by good defensive play in front of goalkeeper Daniel Walsh, Newcastle valiantly fought back to within three goals with 10 minutes to go.

However, two late two-minute suspensions and an injury-forced reshuffle stifled the comeback.

First-half goalkeeper PJ Jakobsen had to play outfield and set up Newcastle's Kafeneon player of the match Eng to fire in his ninth and tenth goals of the match. Boussema then rounding off the Tyneiders' scoring.

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's team jumped to the top of the England Handball North Midlands Regional League after drawing with the University of Loughborough II and beating the University of Lincoln.

With the university sides from Birmingham and leaders Warwick opting not to take part in this first of two centralised tournament-style days of shortened league matches between the North and Midlands teams at the Richard Dunn Sports Centre in Bradford, the Vikings were already guaranteed two 10-0 forfeit wins.

Their first match on court against the Loughborough students was an evenly-matched affair throughout.

The teams were level 7-7 at half-time before the university side took advantage of two two-minute suspensions for Newcastle players to edge ahead - only for the Vikings to fight back well to gain a 15-15 draw by the final whistle.

Newcastle's goals principally came from the back court through Pablo Docampo (5), Julien Eng (4) and Bart Piorkowski (3), captain Adam Mobberley also adding a treble from the wing and line positions.

A dominant 12-3 first half against Lincoln then paved the way for an 11-15 victory for the Vikings in their second game of the day.

Line-player Craig Swanson (2) and half Fedi Boussema were on the scoresheet in the first half in addition to the scorers from the first match, winger Matthew Lamb also picking up two goals in the second period.

Eng led the way with six strikes for the game, Mobberley finding the back of the net four times, Piorkowski adding three and Docampo one.

Very hand-y performers

THE Tyne and Wear Handball School Games featured 20 teams of girls and boys from nine schools representing each of the five Tyne and Wear districts competing for trophies at the Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields.

Organised by Tyne and Wear Sport in partnership with Newcastle Vikings Handball Club - with additional support this year from Tyne Metropolitan College's North East Sports Academy - the annual competition is now in its third year.

The winning schools all go through to the North East regional finals at Temple Park on May 9, with the opportunity to then represent the region in the England Handball Association's National Schools Handball finals.

Playing a series of quick-fire seven-minute round-robin matches, the under-15 and under-13 girls were first to take to the courts. Washington's Oxclose Community Academy narrowly won the under-15 competition on goals scored and goal difference.

Both they and South Tyneside's St Wilfred's RC College were unbeaten - winning three and drawing one of their games and only conceding one goal each. John Spence Community High School from North Tyneside picked up the bronze medals.

North Tyneside's Wellfield Middle School impressively claimed all of their matches in the under-13 competition to clearly win gold, only conceding two goals in their final game against Newcastle's Benfield High School.

Gateshead's Lord Lawson of Beamish Academy were runners-up ahead of third-placed St Wilfred's RC College.

The boys' competitions saw North Tyneside's Churchill Community College take the under-15 gold medals after coming back from an early defeat to triumph in their other three matches.

The day's top-scoring team Lord Lawson of Beamish Academy clinched silver on goals scored and goal difference from Newcastle's Walbottle Campus.

Oxclose Community Academy went unbeaten in winning the under-13 boys' contest ahead of Wellfield Middle School and St Wilfred's RC College.

Vikings gain upper hand in title battle

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's team won their first England Handball Regional League North title by picking up the draw they needed in their second of three matches.

With the Universities of Warwick and Leeds opting not to take part in the final weekend of league competition - thus forfeiting their remaining fixtures - it was all set to be a straight shoot-out between leaders the Vikings and second-placed University of Birmingham to decide the league championship - the Vikings having two games in hand.

The two sides were up against each other in the opening match of the tournament-style day at the Richard Dunn Sports Centre in Bradford.

Birmingham had the better of the first half, taking a 5-3 advantage into the break. The Vikings narrowed the gap in the second half, led by six goals from half-player Pablo Docampo, but Birmingham held on for a narrow 12-11 win.

HANDBALL

Newcastle's second match saw them build an 8-6 half-time lead against the University of Loughborough IL.

The student team edged ahead in the second half, before a frantic finish saw centre Julien Eng fire in his seventh goal of the game in the final second to snatch a 14-14 draw.

The two points were enough to ensure the Tynesiders could not be caught at the top of the league table and secure them their first league title to emulate the achievement of the Vikings women's team last season.

In their final match against the University of Lincoln, the Tynesiders again took a two-goal 8-6 advantage into the interval.

Despite Lincoln pulling back to take a 14-12 win, it was Matthew Lamb's fourth goal at the start of the second half which was the highlight of the game for the Vikings.

In scoring his 100th league and cup goal, the winger became only the second Newcastle male player to reach the century milestone (just three weeks after Eng had done so) - on the day when he also became the first man to make 50 club appearances.

Meanwhile, Newcastle's women were also in action in Liverpool at the Greenbank Sports Academy. The champions went into the final day of tournament-style matches sitting in third place and with an outside mathematical chance of retaining their title if results went their way.

However, a narrow 13-12 defeat to second-placed University of Leeds in their opening match soon put paid to their slim hopes.

The Gryphons led 7-5 at half-time and while the Vikings tried their best to fight back, led by four goals from half-player Rosa Larcy, the university side held on for the win.

Newcastle followed up with a 7-7 draw against Manchester and a 16-14 defeat to the new champions Liverpool to finish their campaign a point behind the University of Leeds in third place.

Schools' squads get hands on silverware

WASHINGTON'S Osdosse Community Academy secured a double win in the North East Regional Handball Schools Games finals at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre.

Featuring schools from Tyne and Wear, Northumberland, Durham and the Tees Valley, the North East Schools Games event is now in its third year.

It was organised by the England Handball Association in partnership with Newcastle Vikings Handball Club.

Osdosse dominated the under-15 girls' competition with an opening 16-1 success against the relatively inexperienced Ponteland Middle School before beating Hartlepool's High Tunstall College of Science 7-1.

The Northumberland representatives also suffered a 13-1 loss to the Teesiders.

The Weariders' under-13 boys also won both of their matches - 7-3 over High Tunstall and 14-0 against The Durham Federation School, the Hartlepool school also keeping a clean sheet in seeing off Durham 11-0.

High Tunstall nevertheless took the under-13 girls' competition honours with two victories.

They overcame Whitley Bay's Wellfield Middle School 8-2 and the Durham Federation 9-2, while Wellfield narrowly defeated Durham 4-3.

Walsend's Churchill Community College triumphed after a close battle for the boys' under-15 title. The North Tyneiders followed a 2-2 draw with a 4-2 win over High Tunstall.

The winning teams will now represent the North East region at the England Handball Association's National Schools Games Finals next month.

Newcastle Vikings would like to thank all the schools for participating as well as Tyne and Wear Sport and students from TyneMet College's North East Sports Academy for helping to run the tournament.

Vikings pay the penalty in seaside shoot-outs

NEWCASTLE VIKINGS' ladies suffered the curse of multiple penalty shoot-out heartbreaks at the British Beach Handball Championships in Poole.

The annual tournament, now in its seventh year at Bournemouth's Chine beach, saw a depleted Newcastle team looking to better last year's third place in the plate competition.

The Tyneiders were again handed a tough opener against experienced former champions London GD in their first group match.

The Londoners put the Vikings to the sword 24-6 in the first half, making the most of their acrobatic spinning and flying trick-shots for two point scores, and despite an improved second half Newcastle performance and bonus point goalkeeper goals of their own GD also took it 16-8 for an overall 2-0 win.

The Vikings soon put their game together for a 2-0 victory over Islington Rattas after easily claiming both halves against the North London side 14-6 and 13-7.

Newcastle's final two group matches against Chelsea and Poole Phoenix Three were drawn, each side winning a half to take the games into running penalty shoot-outs.

In the Chelsea match the Londoners gained the first half 15-4 before the Vikings battled back to clinch the second 15-10 - only for Chelsea to prevail in the shoot-out 4-3 for an overall 2-1 victory.

Against Poole's dynamic young side, Newcastle narrowly won the first half 12-11 - but the home side took the second 19-12 before snatching the penalty shoot-out in sudden death 6-5 to hand the Vikings another 2-1 defeat.

Those results meant Newcastle finished fourth in their group and dropped into the plate competition.

The Vikings grabbed a 13-12 first-half win with an extra-time golden goal against their first opponents Poole Phoenix Two after the scores were level at the half-time whistle.

However, they agonisingly missed out on also taking the second period as the home team came back to grab a 12-11 success - Phoenix going on to take the penalty shoot-out 3-2 for a 2-1 match win.

The Vikings' second Plate match against Islington-on-the-Beach saw the Londoners secure the first half on a golden goal 12-11.

The Vikings then racked up their biggest half win of the weekend - 20-5 - to take the match into yet another penalty shoot-out.

However, for the fourth time over the weekend, luck evaded them and they faltered again as Islington won the shoot-out 3-1 to clinch the game 2-1.

Vikings' cup defeat is a real Knockout blow

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men's team was knocked out of the England Handball National Cup at the first round stage, suffering a 41-15 home loss to Manchester.

The cup tie at the Benfield Centre for Sporting Excellence was never going to be easy against the strong National League North side.

However, without a regular goalkeeper and with no substitutes available, the depleted Vikings were up against it from the start.

Captain Adam Mobberley took on the net role but he could do little against Manchester's shooting accuracy.

All of Newcastle's goals came from the back-court trio of Fedi Boussema, Julien Eng and Adam Batley, each of them netting twice in the first half.

However, the away side was already running away with the game 18-6 by the break.

The Vikings continued to give their all in the second half, with centre Eng striking four in a row in between further goals from half-players Boussema and Kafeneon player-of-the-match Batley.

However, they were unable to contain the visitors' attacking speed and power at the other end as the higher-league side stretched its advantage.

By the time Eng was unfortunate to receive a red card in the final minute, Manchester had already easily secured a convincing 26-goal win and their place in the second round against NEM Hawks.

Newcastle Vikings: Adam Mobberley (GK), Milan Anilkumar, Adam Batley (5 goals), Robert Thompson, Craig Swanson, Mohamed Fedi Boussema (4), Julien Eng (6).

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' handball teams both made a winning start to their English Regional League North season.

The Vikings' ladies travelled to Chester's Northgate Arena on the Wirral to play a Peninsula side who had dropped down from the Premier League at the end of last season.

Missing several regular players for this opening fixture, Newcastle were forced to play two wingers in the back-court half positions and a usual line player on the wing - but that did not phase them and perhaps brought out an even greater determination.

Peninsula netted first but Marie Thompson quickly broke through to equalise from left half before centre Ed Ogbee fired in from the back-court to put the Vikings in front.

Newcastle then piled on the pressure to open up a five-goal lead as Maria Jose Gonzalez found the top corner from the left wing, half players Blessing Ogbee and Thompson notched up first-half hat-tricks and centre Maren Liane came on to score a brace.

At the other end of the court, while Peninsula did pull two goals back, the Vikings were brilliantly solid in defence, consistently closing down the home side's attacking plays to go into the half-time break 10-7 up.

The second period saw Thompson, Gonzalez and the Ogbee sisters stretch Newcastle's advantage to seven before right-winger Kate-rina Gibson also beat the goalkeeper to add her name to the scoresheet.

Vikings' goalkeeper Andrea King continued to back up her tight defence line with several good stops, including a penalty save, as the Vikings teamed up to stifle the threat of six-goal centre Natalie Black and restrict an increasingly frustrated Peninsula side to just four second-half strikes.

Thompson and Ogbee on a fast-break each added their fifth goals of the game as Newcastle rounded off a fine all-round display to run out clear 17-11 winners.

The previous day, the Vikings' men had travelled to take on Warrington Wolves II but technical issues at the venue ultimately meant hosts Wolves had to forfeit the match, gifting Newcastle a default 10-0 away victory.

A friendly practice game was nevertheless played, which Warrington won 26-17.

JUNIOR HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' younger handballers took part in their first mini tournament of the season.

More than 30 children representing the club's Benfield, Temple Park and Gosforth-based teams enjoyed a fun series of games.

In the junior matches, the Temple Park Greens beat the Benfield One Greys 4-2 and the Benfield Two Blacks 7-0 before the Benfield One Greys got the better of their counterparts 5-3. The Temple Park Greens then ran out 9-0 and 4-0 victors over the respective Benfield teams, who rounded off the afternoon with a 1-1 draw.

Meanwhile, the Gosforth minis scored a double victory over the Vikings' minis, winning 7-3 and 9-3.

NEWCASTLE Vikings suffered a disappointing double defeat at home to the University of Leeds in Regional League North fixtures at the Benfield Centre for Sporting Excellence.

A slow start from the Vikings men's team saw them go five goals down before a hat-trick of strikes from centre Pablo Docampo eventually got them into the game.

Stand-in goalkeeper Matt Lamb nearly saved a Leeds penalty shot between his legs and left-half Frank Smelt added a fourth in a low-scoring first half which ended 7-4 to the Gryphons.

Smelt and Docampo each netted twice more from the back court as the Vikings sought to narrow the gap early in the second period, before a knock-out shot in the face forced goalkeeper Lamb.

That injury reduced the already depleted Newcastle side to just six players, line-player Craig Swanson donning the goalkeeper's jersey – and Leeds quickly took advantage of the extra player to extend their advantage again.

Captain Adam Mobberley, meanwhile, led by example at the other end with three goals from the right-wing and Docampo took his personal tally up to eight.

However, even with Lamb bravely returning to the court to resume his position between the posts, the home team was unable to prevent the university side from running out 19-14 winners.

However, centre Maren Liane was forced off following an early knee injury, while in defence the home side uncharacteristically struggled to contain the Gryphons' attack and Andrea King became the second Newcastle goalkeeper of the day to suffer a Leeds shot in the face.

Player-coach Marlen Slinning Goulty nevertheless led by example at the other end with a back-court treble either side of Inta's second but by half-time Leeds had gained a 10-7 advantage.

King's penalty save at the start of the second half briefly gave Newcastle some hope – but the Gryphons continued to find their way through the home defence.

Inta, Turulska and Kafeneon player-of-the-match Goulty each scored twice more for the Vikings – but ultimately it was not enough as Leeds leapfrogged them in the league table with a 20-13 victory.

NEWCASTLE VIKINGS: MBL, Matthew Lamb (GK), Robert Thompson, Craig Swanson, Adam Mobberley (3 goals), Mobberley, Blessing Oqbee, Frank Smelt (3), Pablo Docampo (3). WOMEN: Andrea King (GK), Marlen Slinning Goulty (3 goals), Judyta Turulska (3), Maren Liane (GK), Blessing Oqbee (1), Alina Inta (4), Maren Slinning Goulty (3).

Vikings' men and women go down fighting in league clashes

NEWCASTLE Vikings Handball Club's men's and women's teams travelled to Manchester for English North Regional League matches but came away defeated.

The Vikings' men were only able to field six players as they took on the University of Manchester for the second time in a month at the Sugden Sports Centre.

However, they defied the odds to keep themselves in the game throughout.

They worked really well together in defence to limit the chances for Manchester's students while creating opportunities for themselves at the other end.

Half-player Adam Batley opened Newcastle's account before a brace from centre Pablo Docampo.

Captain Adam Mobberley quickly made up for a missed penalty by scoring from the wing and line position and Thomas Harrison netted from the opposite wing as the Vikings went into the half-time break just one goal behind at 7-6.

They began the second half in similar vein and Docampo's treble sandwiched further strikes from Harrison and Batley to briefly edge the Vikings 11-9 ahead.

Mobberley, Fedi Boussema and two more goals from Batley kept them in the close-fought contest – but in the end they were unable to pull out an unlikely victory as the University of Manchester edged out a narrow 17-15 home win.

Meanwhile, at Sale High School, the Vikings' women were also in action at the same time against a newly-formed Trafford Handball Club team which featured several former Manchester players.

The home side made the better start as Newcastle struggled to close down their twin line-player attack.

Vikings' line player Blessing Oqbee put Newcastle on the scoreboard but Trafford opened out their lead to seven before sister Ed Oqbee fired in two penalty strikes either side of goals from left-half Judyta Turulska and right-winger Marlene Thompson.

By half-time Trafford had built up an 11-5 advantage.

In the second half, right-half Alina

Inta netted a penalty and one from the back-court.

Player-coach Marlen Slinning Goulty lobbed the goalkeeper from the line position and Thompson converted two penalties either side of Turulska's brace from the right-wing as the Vikings took advantage of a double two-minute suspension for the home side to claw their way back to within four.

Turulska and Blessing Oqbee each fired in from the wings, Inta rounding off Newcastle's scoring as Trafford ran out 21-15 winners.

Action from the Vikings' men's and women's clashes at Newcastle's Benfield Centre for Sporting Excellence, the Vikings in the black strips

Vikings are beaten in tough fight

NEWCASTLE Vikings' pre-Christmas England North Regional League fixtures handed them tough calls - the men's squad against the second team of Premier League club Warrington Wolves and the ladies facing champions and league leaders Liverpool.

The men lost 20-10 while the women were edged out 17-15. The men started in positive fashion at Benfield Centre for Sporting Excellence as player-coach Frank Smelt put the Vikings ahead with their 1,000th goal in English league and cup competitions.

Centre Adam Batley kept them in the game early on, but the Wolves team - featuring several players with Premier League experience - soon showed their prowess to steal ahead with several opportunistic breakaways to open out a five-goal lead.

Batley's second and one from line-player Craig Swanson briefly pulled Newcastle back to within four. However, by the time left-half Smelt broke through for his second goal Warrington had extended their advantage and went into half-time 12-5 ahead.

The Vikings continued to put up a brave fight in the second half with dogged defence, while Matthew Lamb put in a brilliant Kafeneon man-of-the-match display between the posts in saving numerous Warrington shots.

Right-half Mark Harrison and right-winger Adam Moberley added their names to the scoresheet. Smelt and Harrison each found the net again from the back-court before left-winger Robert Thompson saw red, forcing an injured Pablo Docampo to choose to take to the court for the latter stages to make up the numbers.

Captain Moberley fired into the top corner in the final second of the game to ensure the Vikings reached double-figure respectability - but the Wolves were clear 20-10 victors. With some of Liverpool's ladies team delayed en route to the North East, Thompson offered to begin their game six-a-side rather than take advantage from the outset.

A brace from centre Ed Ogbee and one from left-half Marie Thompson nevertheless put the Vikings into an early lead before seven-a-side service was resumed and the away side - back to full strength - edged their way back into the contest.

The Vikings ladies then also notched up their 1,000th English league and cup goal on the same day through Ogbee's third. Maria-Jose Gonzalez pivoted to score from the line position and Thompson converted from the penalty line - but both defences were on top to keep the scoring down at both ends. By half-time there was just one goal in it, 7-6 to the Merseysiders.

At the start of the second half right-half Alina Inta fired in to become only the third Viking player to score 150 league and cup goals.

Blessing Ogbee then struck twice from the right-wing before younger sister Ed and Inta added two more apiece to their tallies as the two sides continued to level-peg each other.

Both goalkeepers saved penalties, but the Vikings fell foul of defending too deeply into the goal area on too many occasions to gift Liverpool numerous penalty opportunities and help Brooke Partington on her way to a decisive nine-goal haul for the away side. Despite a late brace from left-half Judyta Turulka, Newcastle were unable to hold on to claim a deserved share of the points.

LIVERPOOL knocked Newcastle Vikings out of the England Handball Women's National Cup, beating them 21-14.

The Merseysiders opened the scoring but Newcastle quickly levelled with Maren Liane's strike from the right wing.

Marie Thompson then twice broke through from the back-court, Blessing Ogbee struck from the line position and Alina Inta fired in from right-half as Newcastle kept in touch with their opponents.

Those goals were backed up by solid defensive teamwork and several good stops - including a penalty save by goalkeeper Andrea King.

Player-coach Marlen Slinning Goulty switched from centre to line and duly scored her 150th Vikings goal in a deserved Kafeneon player-of-the-match performance.

Judyta Turulka moved from half to centre and grabbed her first of the match and Thompson's penalty strike just before the break made the scoreline 9-8 at half-time.

Turulka momentarily levelled affairs at 9-9 as the second half began but the home side soon regained the lead from the penalty line before extending its advantage on the fast-break.

Goulty pivoted for her second and Ogbee fired in from the left-wing before a right-wing double from Liane - but the Merseysiders had stretched their lead to six by the time Turulka also notched her third goal before adding late gloss to the scoreline.

WOMEN'S NATIONAL CUP:
Liverpool HC - Newcastle Vikings 21-14

Our Liverpool ladies kicked off the new year the best way possible last Saturday, by securing a great win at home against a formidable Newcastle Vikings team. It was a well fought game by both teams with an extremely close first half but thankfully we pulled away towards the end of the second and made it our first win of 2020!!!

It was also a chance for our club to award Newcastle vikings with an award we dedicated to them for their outstanding attitude and fair play. This was for when we played them in December and were missing some of our players at the beginning of the game, they chose also to play only with 6 to match us, until the missing players arrived. An extremely warm sporting gesture and a testament to how close we all are as one handball community across the country

Stephen Jones

Prior to Liverpool Handball Club's game against Newcastle Vikings Handball Club last weekend we presented them with a trophy to acknowledge the club's excellent sportsmanship and fair-play they showed LHC when we last played them in December 2019.

Due to a technical issue with our mini bus, Liverpool HC has to arrange alternative transport. This resulted in three of our players to Newcastle for our league match were going to be seriously delayed, so much so, that the game would 15 minutes old before they arrived.

We informed Newcastle, however, because of time restraints they could not delay the start. Hence, we had to start the game a player down and had no subs.

Now, if you don't know anything about handball, playing with a player down in defence is a huge advantage to the attacking team almost resulting in a goal every time the team attacks.

However, bearing in mind Newcastle Vikings had a full complement of players ready to start the game, to my amazement Newcastle took it upon themselves to play a player down until our late arrivals arrived and were ready to enter the court.

Liverpool HC eventually went on to win the game by 2 goals. However, had they played with the one player advantage in those first 15 minutes the score could have been very different.

What makes it even more significant is: I'm also not sure whether Liverpool HC would have done the same had it been Newcastle players who were late?

It was a selfless act that can only be described as an excellent example of sportsmanship and fair-play!

TOTAL RESPECT Newcastle Vikings!

Vikings' victory is enough to lift them off the bottom

WOMEN'S TEAM ALSO THIRD AS OPPONENTS HAVE TO FORFEIT

NEWCASTLE Vikings Handball Club's men put in a brilliant team performance to claim a well-deserved 19-16 home win against Leeds University.

The win was enough to lift them off the bottom of the table, leapfrogging Leeds in the process.

The men's England Regional League North fixture at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre got under way with right-winger Robert Thompson and player-coach Frank Smelt from the line position giving Newcastle an early lead.

The university side pulled back, but two goals apiece from Thompson and left-half Adam Batley plus four strikes from centre Mark Harrison took the Vikings into the half-time break in positive spirits with a 10-9 lead.

Captain Adam Mobberley added his name to the scoresheet at the start of the second half, with left-winger Milan Anilkumar enjoying scoring his first Vikings goal in between further strikes from Smelt and Batley.

Novice goal-keeper Matthew Lamb again did a great job between the posts to help keep the Gryphons at bay and enable Newcastle to gradually stretch their advantage.

Mobberley picked up his second from right-half, while Thompson, Smelt and Batley each took their tallies for the game to four goals to match Kafeneon player of the match Harrison.

By the final whistle, the Vikings had come away with a valuable 19-16 win that lifted them off the bottom of the league table and above Leeds University into third place.

Meanwhile, Newcastle Vikings' women also jumped into third place in their league without playing, thanks to gaining a default 10-0 win after Wirral club Peninsula unfortunately cancelled and forfeited their match due to not having enough players available to travel up to the North East.

The afternoon's handball action nevertheless continued with women's and juniors friendly games.

A great turnout of friends and family particularly enjoyed supporting the a fun match between the Vikings' junior players from their Temple Park and Benfield training bases.

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club would like to thank everyone who came along and especially for all the generous donations made to our collection for the South Shields foodbank which was gratefully received when delivered by club chairperson Marlen Slinning Goulty.

Docampo shines on top day for Vikings

HANDBALL

NEWCASTLE Vikings' men moved to the top of the North Regional Handball League with a strong 24-19 victory over hosts the University of Leeds.

The Vikings were led by a brilliant 10-goal haul from centre Pablo Docampo, left-half Bart Piorkowski finding the back of the Gryphon's net six times.

Four of Docampo's strikes and three from Piorkowski came in the first half of the match, one from right-half Fedi Boussema and a wing double from Adam Mobberley just before the break helping the Tyne-siders into a 10-6 half-time lead.

Kafeneon player of the match Docampo continued to run the show in the second half, firing in six more, while Piorkowski doubled his personal tally.

A late waver briefly allowed the university side to narrow the gap before captain Mobberley steadied

taining match featuring cracking long-range back-court goals from both sides.

The home side dominated the initial exchanges and despite centre Marlen Slinning Goulty's early equaliser the University of Leeds opened up a six-goal lead as Newcastle's defence struggled to contain their shooting opportunities.

The university side held a 10-5 lead at half-time and, despite head coach Goulty leading a back-court onslaught which helped the Vikings outscore their opponents in the second half, eventually won 20-16 to leapfrog Newcastle in the Women's Regional League table.

The Vikings are back in league action tomorrow when the men take on Warrington Wolves II and the ladies face Trafford, both games at Newcastle's Benfield Centre for Sporting Excellence.

MORE than 40 boys and girls came together to enjoy a fun afternoon of handball at Newcastle's Benfield Centre for Sporting Excellence.

Following on from Newcastle Vikings' senior men's and women's friendly matches against York Hunters and the University of York, the youngsters took centre stage.

They competed with great spirit in a series of under-16 matches involving the Vikings' Benfield and Temple Park juniors and under-12 games between the Vikings and guests Cragside.

The under-eight mini-Vikings also enjoyed games against the Gosforth minis.

Cragside Vikings triumphed in the first under-12s' match 4-3.

However, the Vikings team then hit back to take two victories 5-2 and 6-2.

Dundee Handball Club (blue) in action against Newcastle in a Scottish Division Two encounter at DISC. See below.

The DISC hosted the first-ever Scottish National Handball League games to be played in Dundee.

Dundee Handball Club had three teams in action — their Division One and Two men's teams, and Division One women's side.

The first game of the day was the Division Two encounter as Dundee took on Newcastle Vikings.

Dundee started strong, scoring three goals before Newcastle reorganised themselves and started matching Dundee's attacks.

Newcastle clawed their way back and actually had the opportunity to equalise midway into the first half with a penalty but a great save by Dundee goalkeeper Matt Gilhooly prevented it and Dundee eventually went into half-time leading 10-6.

The second half saw Dundee score six goals in a row on their way to a 22-13 victory.

CRUCIAL PENALTY SAVE

The host club's women's team also took on Newcastle and Dundee goalkeeper Elena Eusterwiemann saved a crucial penalty in the first half as the home side turned around 6-5 up.

The second half saw Dundee incur two-minute suspensions and, with quarter of the second half spent a player down, Newcastle edged home 15-12.

TyneMet Sport Students Get Elite Handball Coaching

28 Apr 2014 by Lisa Dawson

Students studying on the Level 3 Sport Performance and Excellence at TyneMet College were recently introduced to the fast paced game of Handball.

The new practical skills and techniques learned will be used as examples by the students to complete the element of the course that covers Technical and Tactical Skills in Sport.

Handball is an exciting and action-packed team sport which is great fun to play, it is recognized as the fastest ball sport in the world and has become a massive hit in Britain after the successful London 2012 Olympic Games.

The 19 students who were all new to the game were introduced to the rules, format and tactics of the game by Marlen Slinning, Head Coach and Robin Gevilette, Assistant Coach from the Newcastle Vikings Handball Club.

The Newcastle Vikings are the first developmental Handball Club in Newcastle and were founded in 2012. Marlen is the Head Coach and the driving force behind the club, she originally comes from Norway and has years of experience playing and teaching handball. Passionate about developing young people and adults in the art of handball she was delighted to come to TyneMet College to deliver four training sessions to the Sports students.

Marlen said:

"Our mission is to grow Handball in Newcastle as a community development tool for the years to come, with an aim of creating sustainable handball teams in different age/gender groups taking part in the England and Scotland Handball tournaments and leagues.

"We really enjoyed the sessions we delivered at TyneMet College. We were able to showcase this amazing sport to the students, some of whom have expressed a keen interest in joining some of the Viking's training sessions."

Warick Stephenson, Head of Care, Sport and Leisure, TyneMet College, said:

"The Level 3 Sport Performance and Excellence course examines the role of the professional sports person as well as the key concepts within sports coaching so this activity was extremely useful to the students.

"We encourage the students to build up their portfolio of sporting activities so that they can adjust coaching procedures to fit the need of a whole range of sporting disciplines."

Olympic sport arrives in South Tyneside

ON THE BALL ... Newcastle Vikings Handball Club's men's and women's teams.

2 May

SPORTS fans in South Tyneside will be able to take in the Olympic game of handball for the first time this weekend.

The event, organised by Newcastle Vikings Handball Club, will see male and female teams from England and Scotland competing in the tournament at the Temple Park Leisure Centre, South Shields, on Saturday. The tournament starts at 10am and entry is free to anyone who wants to go along and watch the matches throughout the day.

Coun Alan Kerr, deputy leader of South Tyneside Council with responsibility for culture and leisure services, said: "It's really good to see South Tyneside playing an active part in continuing to develop the Olympic legacy, and help inspire young people to keep fit and healthy by getting involved in playing exciting new sports like this.

"I hope this tournament is the start of something really promising for the North East."

The tournament will see Newcastle Vikings' men take on teams from Sunderland University, York, Bedfordshire's Cranfield University, Edinburgh, Glasgow and East Kilbride in Scotland.

In the women's competition, the Vikings will be playing against Edinburgh, York and Cranfield University.

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club is the first non-university handball club in the North East and was founded Marlen Slinning and fellow enthusiasts in September 2012.

Ms Slinning, who is from Norway – the home of the Olympic handball champions – is the head coach and chairwoman of the club.

She has played handball all her life and was inspired to set up the club in the wake of the London 2012 Olympic Games:

She said: "I've been playing handball since I was about five, it's really popular across continental Europe but less known in Britain.

"I wanted to build on the huge interest and legacy generated by the Olympics. Handball has really taken off and we're developing rapidly as a club with the help of Sport England, establishing promising senior and junior teams for both girls and boys. I also teach handball in local schools."

She added: "We've got a good mix of experienced and new players of all ages at the club now and our aim is to grow handball across Newcastle and the North East. This tournament in South Tyneside is a big step towards that, and hopefully we'll attract some new members to our club too.

"This is a great opportunity to come along and watch the fastest ball sport in the world."

South Tyneside Council worker and Vikings goalkeeper, Andrea King, was inspired to try her hand at the sport after going to watch the Olympic women's handball semi-final in London.

"A couple of months later a friend told me about a new handball club setting up in Gateshead so I went along, and through that I found out about the Newcastle Vikings.

"Coming third in our first league season has been amazing."

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club train on Wednesday evenings at the Percy Hedley Sports Academy, Killingworth, North Tyneside, – juniors from 7pm to 8pm and adults from 8pm to 10pm.

The club is also planning to start up additional junior and senior training sessions at Temple Park Leisure Centre from September.

Handball club gets a national mark of success

21 July

Jade Mackie (Tyne & Wear Sport) presenting the Clubmark award to Marlen Slinning and some other members of the Newcastle Vikings club.

A South Tyneside-based sports club has been handed a national accolade. Newcastle Vikings Handball Club, who train at Temple Park Centre, South Shields, is celebrating scooping a prestigious clubmark accreditation.

They are the first club in England to receive the honour, for which they needed to achieve quality standards in a range of categories, from coaching and club management to child welfare and protection.

Jade Mackie, who presented club members with the prize on behalf of Tyne and Wear Sport, said: "I want to commend all involved with the club on attaining this prestigious recognition."

"Everyone at the club works extremely hard to raise the profile of handball across Tyne and Wear and the club is committed to offering activity to all of its members irrespective of what level they are at."

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club has been training at Temple Park Leisure Centre since September 2014 and, along with the training sessions they hold in both in both South Tyneside and Killingworth, they also dedicate time to visiting schools to introduce the sport during PE lessons and at after-school clubs.

Marlen Slinning, who runs the club, said: "We are very proud to have achieved the Clubmark award. "We are a club for all members of the family and the award will show that we provide a safe and well run sport for anyone wanting to come and try it."

"We already have good adult male and female teams here, but would love to have more younger members here and hopefully this accreditation will encourage more parents to bring their children along to give it a try."

Newcastle Vikings Ladies reclaim Tyneside Handball Tournament title

12 May

Newcastle Vikings Ladies are celebrating after reclaiming their Tyneside Handball Tournament crown,

Hosted by Newcastle Vikings Handball Club, the annual tournament, now in its third year, welcomed both men's and women's teams from across northern England and Scotland to South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre to compete in the group stages, play-offs and finals.

The Vikings women were up against Durham University, the University of Leeds and Edinburgh.

Edinburgh's draw with Durham University in the last of the women's group-stage fixtures saw them win through to the final on goal difference, as Durham had to settle for third place ahead of the University of Leeds.

However, Newcastle's ladies were too strong for Edinburgh in the final as they ran out 17-10 winners in the highest-scoring match of the day. Vikings half-player Alina Inta claimed the tournament top-scorer prize with 13 goals.

Newcastle Vikings' men took on the newly-established Sunderland side, combined teams from York Hunters-Durham University and Edinburgh-Newcastle, the University of Strathclyde and reigning two-time champions Glasgow,

A feisty derby saw Sunderland beat Newcastle 9-7 in the play-off for third place to gain revenge for the Vikings' group stage victory,

The Edinburgh-Newcastle team defeated York Hunters-Durham University 6-5 in the fifth place decider.

Glasgow's men had gone through the group stages unbeaten and seemed set for their third Tyneside win in a row, But an evenly-matched final saw their Scottish student neighbours hold them to an 8-8 draw to take it to a nail-biting sudden-death penalty shoot-out to decide the title for the second year.

This time, however, Glasgow were to be denied as the University of Strathclyde goalkeeper's second save gave them a 6-5 shoot-out victory.

Strathclyde's Chris Mowat and Glasgow's Yohann Gloaguen were the clear top-scorers in the men's competition for the second year running with 26 and 21 goals respectively.

The club would like to thank all the teams for coming to take part and hope everyone enjoyed another great fun day.

VIKINGS ON THE MARCH

Newcastle Vikings women's handball team achieved the rare feat of keeping a clean sheet in their 49-0 home victory against University of Leeds last weekend in the North Regional Development League – another example of how far the club has come.

In a great team performance, goalkeeper Andrea King admitted to growing nervousness the longer the game went on, followed by a mix of elation and relief after coming close to achieving the same feat a week earlier. On top of 29-1 and 26-5 away wins over Leeds Carnegie and University of Leeds, the Vikings ladies have scored 104 goals while only conceding six in a run that has sent them leap to the top of the league. It shows how the team has grown after playing their debut 2013/14 season in the Scottish Handball League where they finished in a creditable third place.

The men's team are also in good form with an unbeaten league run of seven games that sees them flying high. That represents an impressive turnaround under new coach Jason Lee after a winless first season.

Head coach Marlen Slinning founded the club in the wake of the legacy from London 2012 with a mission to grow and develop handball in the North East. With a multi-national mix of experienced handballers and beginners, the Vikings currently have nearly 50 players, including a talented mixed junior team. The Vikings are a club going places.

VIKINGS GIVEN CLUBMARK STATUS

2015

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club has been awarded Clubmark accreditation.

The award was presented by Tyne & Wear Sport at the club's training session at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields. In order to become Clubmark accredited the Vikings club has achieved quality standards in child welfare and protection, coaching, club management and a range of other measures designed to ensure the club is well managed.

Presenting the award, Jade Mackie from Tyne & Wear Sport said: "I want to commend all involved with the club on attaining this prestigious recognition. Everyone at the club works extremely hard to raise the profile of handball across Tyne and Wear and the club is committed to offering activity to all of its members irrespective of what level they are at."

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club has been training at Temple Park Leisure Centre since September 2014 and – along with training sessions in both South Tyneside and Killingworth – they also spend a lot of time visiting schools to introduce the sport during PE lessons and at after-school clubs.

The club is run by Marlen Slinning, she said: "We are very proud to have achieved the Clubmark award. We are a club for all members of the family and the award will show that we provide a safe and well run sport for anyone wanting to come and try it.

"We already have good adult male and female teams here but would love to have more younger members here and, hopefully, this accreditation will encourage more parents to bring their children along to give it a try."

John Thomason from England Handball said: "Newcastle Vikings are a great example of a club that is promoting best practice on-and-off the court, and that is reflected in their achievement of being awarded Clubmark. The partnership approach with Tyne & Wear Sport that the club has adopted in reaching this goal has set an example to other handball clubs across the country."

CLEAN SWEEP FOR VIKINGS AT NORTH-EAST TOURNAMENT

2 February
2016

Newcastle Vikings won four-from-four in the second round of the North East Handball tournament.

The matches, between Newcastle Vikings, Durham University and York Hunters took place at South Shields' Temple Park Leisure Centre on 30 January.

The friendly tournament got underway with mixed teams from Durham University and York playing each other, Durham winning 13-8.

Newcastle Vikings' women then scored a brilliant runaway 20-2 win over York Hunters, with both teams each giving a run out to a couple of Durham University players.

The Vikings men then beat York's mixed team 17-10, as the home side sought to give more game time to a number of newer and less regular league players.

In the second women's match of the day Newcastle switched things around a bit to allow players a chance to try less familiar positions. York took an early two-goal lead but the Vikings came back to win 9-3.

The final men's match saw the Vikings run out convincing 16-6 victors over the mixed Durham University side.

Together with Newcastle's league victory over the Huddersfield men's team earlier in the afternoon, the regional tournament wins were a welcome return to winning ways for the Vikings men's and women's teams.

Durham University hosts the third round of the North East tournament on 28 February 2016.

VIKINGS CLAIM INAUGURAL NORTH EAST TOURNAMENT CROWN

29 February
2016

The opening tie saw Newcastle's men beat Durham 7-5 in a tight encounter.

The women's competition again saw Newcastle and York each giving a run out to a couple of Durham University girls, with the Newcastle-Durham team runaway 15-2 winners in their first match of the afternoon.

Durham's men then convincingly won 15-5 against York.

The second women's match saw the combined Newcastle-Durham side claim another victory over York-Durham, 8-3 this time.

The final men's match was another close contest as Newcastle and York traded goals throughout. The Vikings won out 12-10 to seal the overall tournament title.

They will play Poole Phoenix in the final after they beat Liverpool 19-17 in another close match.

GD's men also endured a nail-biter, overcoming Capital City rivals London Angels by a single point as the match finished 24-23. WOMENS' REGIONAL LEAGUE: READING 'INVINCIBLE' AND NEWCASTLE WIN TITLE DECIDER

2018

Reading Lionesses and Newcastle Vikings women's teams have both enjoyed excellent seasons, winning their respective leagues.

Reading ended the season with a 100% record in the Womens' South West Regional League, while Newcastle won a title decider against Liverpool in the North Regional League.

Reading's title – which was confirmed following their victory over Poole Phoenix in their previous match – was the third time in succession they have been crowned south-west champions. With silverware confirmed Reading went into their final match of the season against bottom side Bath University looking to secure an 'invincibles' tag.

The first half was a tight affair, Reading holding a narrow 13-11 lead at the break, thanks in no small part to Alina Popescu who struck eight first-half goals.

In the second 30 minutes the champions showed their class. Catarina Silva and Zsanett Nagy were clinical in front of goal while the whole team showed great resilience in defence. Emese Racz resembled a quarter-back, throwing long, precise passes to set up Fannie Grondon and Barbara Flis to score. The final score read 28-18 to Reading Lionesses. It may not have been a vintage performance, but the Reading girls did not care as they celebrated going the entire season unbeaten for the first time.

Despite another trophy in the cabinet, the Lionesses are still hunting two more prizes. For the first time they have chosen to enter the play-off against Brighton Starlings on 29 April at Stoke Mandeville Stadium in Aylesbury. The winner of that match will go into the play-off finals to battle for a place in the Women's Premier Handball League. Following that the Lionesses will play Loughborough University in the National Shield on 5 May at Derby Arena.

Vikings' women's team were crowned North Regional League champions with an 18-13 win at title rivals Liverpool.

Centre Maren Liane got Newcastle off to the perfect start with an early goal from the back-court, but Liverpool took advantage of some defensive line infringements to score three consecutive well-taken penalties from Malgoria Janus. The Vikings soon pulled back to level through right-winger Marie Brevet's powerful shot into the top-corner and Liane's second from the line position. The two teams continued to trade blows throughout the first half as left-half Ingvild Misund and Liane broke through the home defence and Emily Bjerk fired into the bottom corner from the right wing to keep the Vikings on a par. Vikings' goalkeeper Andrea King pulled off two penalty saves, while late goals from Maria Gonzalez pivoting on the line and right-half Alina Inta sent Newcastle into the break with a narrow 8-7 lead.

The second half started in a similar vein with Liane netting either side of Misund's second. Head coach Marlen Slinning Goulty then got in on the act to beat the Liverpool keeper herself, while King saved her third penalty at the other end as the Vikings' defence held firm to thwart the home side's attacks.

Newcastle gradually opened up their advantage through further Inta and Liane back-court strikes. Bjerk's wing shot found its way under the keeper and player-of-the-match Goulty broke through for her second. Inta struck her third and season top-scorer Liane rounded off the scoring with her seventh of the match, before the final whistle sent the Vikings into elation.

The Vikings will now go into battle in the promotion play-offs at Oldham, against, Midlands Regional League champions Loughborough University. The victor will go onto face either Reading or Brighton in the play-off final for a place in the Womens' Premier Handball League.

HANDBALL STARS IN NORTHUMBERLAND SCHOOL GAMES

2 July

Six boroughs came together at the Northumberland School Games Festival which saw a Level 3 handball event, organised by young leaders from Ponteland High School.

In Northumberland teams from the six county areas (Ashington and Coquet; Blyth and Bedlington; Cramlington and Seaton Valley; Morpeth and Ponteland; North Northumberland and Tynedale) had already competed to become their area champion and arrived at Cramlington, where the Games were held, to compete to become county champions in their chosen sport.

Local handball club Newcastle Vikings have forged close links with Ponteland High School to develop handball at the school, and the results were fantastic to see at the School Games. Vikings was established in 2012 and is a club on the move. Last season the men's team played in the National League North and women in the Regional League North, and the club has also developed junior teams and participated in beach handball competitions.

Andy Clark, North West Development Manager, assisted at the Festival but left the running of the event to the Ponteland young leaders, who managed and officiated the handball competition.

More than 1000 school pupils between the ages of 6 and 15 participated in the Schools Games, across twelve different sports.

Former England netball player Leah Kennedy attended the festival to promote sport and encourage the pupils participating to persevere and more importantly, to have fun!

The School Games Festival is a celebration of sport which is designed to motivate and inspire young people to take part in competitive sport. It is a government led programme, funded by The National Lottery and delivered by the Youth Sport Trust.

ENGLAND HANDBALL ANNOUNCE TYNE METROPOLITAN COLLEGE PARTNERSHIP

25 September
2018

England Handball has announced a delivery-partner agreement with Tyne Metropolitan College.

The aim of the project, which is initially for one year with the potential to extend to two years, is to:

- Grow handball in the North East, with a big focus on the wider Tyne and Wear area
- Grow youth handball across schools, colleges and universities
- Develop the handball workforce across the North East region
- Support the development of community handball in partnership with Newcastle Vikings Handball Club

Funding is from European Handball Federation as part of England Handball's European Handball Federation smart plan project to grow handball in the North East and South West of England.

Tyne Metropolitan College Sport Development Manager Craig Robson said: "It is a really exciting opportunity to work with England Handball to support the development of the sport in the North East.

"It is a great experience as a college to work at a national level to create the next generation of players from primary, secondary and further education that could eventually lead to identifying talented players in the region.

"It is also a unique chance to support the development of a high-quality workforce to promote a positive environment for our learners and those in the North East keen to get involved in handball.

"We're looking forward to this year, hitting our targets and developing this partnership further."

England Handball National Partnerships Manager Stacey Andrews said: "I am delighted to announce this new partnership with Tyne Metropolitan College in Newcastle which will enable us to provide some local support to the growing handball community in the North East.

"It is exciting to be working with such a forward-thinking college which has sport at its core. The college already has fantastic links with its local community through its sport provision, so it is great to be able to add handball to their menu of opportunities and provide more opportunities for people in the North East to discover and engage in handball regularly."

REGIONAL LEAGUE FOCUS: NEWCASTLE VIKINGS AND LIVERPOOL BATTLE TO A ONE- GOAL VERDICT

5 November

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club's women opened their England Handball Regional League North title defence with a highly competitive 18-19 away win over last season's runners-up Liverpool at Chester's Northgate Arena on Sunday.

In an evenly matched first half in which the two teams traded goals throughout, Vikings centre Maren Liane opened the scoring before the Merseysiders nudged ahead. Right-half Alina Inta, right-winger Blessing Ogbie, line-player María José González and left-half Rosa Larcy all fired in from close range to level the scoreline at 5-5, before back court players Liane and Inta both struck again with Larcy slotting a penalty shot.

Vikings Goalkeeper Andrea King brilliantly saved a Liverpool penalty with her outstretched foot, but could not prevent the hosts from continuing to find their way through the Newcastle defence to level again, and was thankful to captain Sandra Christke-Lamb's strike from the line position and another Larcy penalty to give the Vikings a narrow 9-10 half-time advantage.

Liverpool came out the more positive at the start of the second half, and despite another Inta goal they quickly opened a four-goal. However, backed up by another King penalty save, the Vikings women got their game together and fought back superbly with six unanswered goals from Liane and a double-brace from top-scorer Larcy sandwiching Christke-Lamb's second to really get the Newcastle players pumped-up going into the closing minutes.

The home side continued their well-practiced attacking plays, with Liverpool left-winger Judit Radnoti scoring her seventh goal and left-half Marta Tubacka adding her fifth as they sought to level again in a tense finish. But the Vikings defence held firm, with player-coach Marlen Goulty firing a brilliant shot into the top corner over the Liverpool defence at the other end, and Newcastle's player-of-the-match Liane appropriately rounded off the scoring with her fourth goal to secure the one-goal 18-19 victory.

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club would like to thank Liverpool Handball Club for a great game, with the Merseysiders gracefully acknowledging the close loss as a great advert for women's handball, played in the correct spirit with some excellent performances. Goulty was pleased with all of the Vikings girls to come back for the win from their opening match of the season, but nevertheless recognised there were clearly a few things to practice on before the next match in two weeks' time away to the University of Leeds on 17 November.

VIKINGS CRICKET LINK-UP

2019

Close to 100 youngsters were introduced to handball thanks to a link-up between Newcastle Vikings and All-Star cricket participants.

The collaboration was such a success that Vikings and Northumberland Cricket Board are looking at putting on future sessions.

All-Star Cricket is a programme run by the ECB to provide boys and girls from 5-8 years old with eight weeks of non-stop fun. The programme provides the children with the foundations to begin a lifelong love of physical activity and cricket.

As throwing a ball is part of both cricket and handball it was arranged for Vikings to showcase their sport to local All-Star participants.

Vikings are working with Svend Elkjaer of Sports Marketing Network through England Handball's club support programme. Svend knows Russell Perry, Chair of Northumberland Cricket Board, who is also involved local, dynamic cricket club, Corbridge CC. They met and it was agreed that the Vikings could take part in some of the All-Star Cricket sessions at Corbridge.

The sessions were a great success. Vikings Chair Marlen Slinning-Goulty said: "It was really great linking up with the cricket community in the North East."

She added: "We are really pleased that it has already been agreed that Northumberland Cricket Board will support a wider role out of the collaboration in 2020."

Meanwhile, a post on Corbridge CC's Facebook page said: "...we had another fun filled night of All Stars. Thanks to the coaches from Newcastle Vikings Handball Club who brought their sport to Corbridge as the fielding station. The throwing, catching, jumping and running mirrored the work we all do in the field and provided much needed extra helpers. The Handball club are based in Benfield School and are keen to hear from local clubs running All Stars in their area."

Handball is a sport played throughout five continents by over 180 countries and 19 million people all ages, worldwide. Combining speed, strength, stamina, agility, technical precision, skill and teamwork, handball has become one of the fastest-paced and exciting Olympic sports.

Founded in 2012, the Newcastle Vikings Handball Club is the first handball club in the region. The club is made up of a diverse group of people with a common objective: practice handball whilst contributing to the development of the community through sport.

Marlen Slinning is the head coach and the driving force behind the club. Hailing from Norway with years of experience playing and teaching handball, she is passionate about developing young people and adults in the art of handball. Marlen has joined forces with a group of other sports enthusiasts and founded the club that to date has over 40 participants, both juniors and seniors.

We spoke with Marlen to find out more about her club and this fascinating sport.

What makes Handball such a great sport?

Handball is an exciting and action packed team sport which is great fun for girls and boys of all ages. It is recognised as the fastest ball sport in the world and can be played both indoor and outdoor, even on the beach. Handball can be adapted to the equipment and space you have available and there are many simplified versions of the game which can suit different size groups and ability.

How many club members do you have and how often do you hold training sessions ?

Currently we have 48 members and we hold sessions twice a week.

Mondays at Temple Park Leisure Centre, South Shields: Juniors, age 10-16 from 6.30-7.30pm - Seniors Development (age 17+) from 7-8.30pm. Those who are playing in the league stay until 10pm on Mondays.

Wednesday at Percy Hedley Sports Academy, Killingworth: Juniors, age 10-16 from 7-8pm - Seniors Development (age 17+) from 8-10pm.

Do you get many people coming along to the training sessions who are completely new to the sport?

Our membership changes every year as we have a lot of students playing with us. This means every season we lose and gain new members due to people finishing or starting university. Around half of our members were completely new to handball when they joined us. So it is a great mix of beginners and experienced players.

Do you have a Junior Team at the moment?

We have a Junior Team training at Percy Hedley Sports Academy on Wednesdays. We have 10 players in the age between 10-16.

We are also working closely with South Tyneside Council to promote our new Temple Park Junior sessions. We are also working closely with Sunderland School Sport to promote our sessions through school visits and taking part in their handball school games. We also offer all schools one free taster session of handball to hopefully attract new members to our junior sessions.

What has been the biggest achievement for the Newcastle Viking club?

For our club the biggest achievement has been seeing how much the club has developed from when we started in September 2012. After only one year we had one women's team and one men's team playing competitive handball in the Scottish League and this year in the English League and we have one junior team. So after just one season we had over forty members.

How can someone get involved with your club?

If someone would like to try out handball they are very welcome to any of our handball sessions. We offer three free taster sessions and welcome beginners as well as experienced players.

If schools or other community clubs would like a taste of handball they can get in touch with us to arrange and we can come to their venue.

As we are playing in the English North Development league we host home matches at Temple Park some weekends during the year and we will be hosting our annual handball tournament on the 2nd May from 9am to 7pm. We also welcome spectators to come along and support us during our matches. This has free entry and it's a great way to get a taste of the sport. Details of our match dates can be found here on our website.

We'd like to thank Marlen and her team for all of their help.

Vikings First to Achieve National Clubmark Accolade

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club have become the only handball club in England to achieve the prestigious Clubmark accreditation.

Clubmark is a national accolade for sports clubs, awarded in recognition of achieving high quality standards in child welfare and protection, coaching, club management and a range of other measures designed to ensure the club is well managed.

The award was presented by Tyne & Wear Sport at the club's training session at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields. Presenting the award, Jade Mackie from Tyne & Wear Sport said, "I want to commend all involved with the club on attaining this prestigious recognition. Everyone at the club works extremely hard to raise the profile of handball across Tyne and Wear and the club is committed to offering activity to all of its members irrespective of what level they are at."

As well as training regularly at both South Tyneside and the Percy Hedley Sports Academy in Killingworth, Newcastle Vikings Handball Club also spend a lot of time visiting schools to introduce the sport during PE lessons and at after-school clubs.

Head Coach Marlen Slinning said, "We are very proud to have achieved the Clubmark award. We are a club for all members of the family and the award will show that we provide a safe and well run sport for anyone wanting to come and try it. We already have good adult male and female teams here, but would love to have more younger members here and hopefully this accreditation will encourage more parents to bring their children along to give it a try."

John Thomason from England Handball said, "Newcastle Vikings are a great example of a club that is promoting best practice on and off the court, and that is reflected in their achievement of being awarded Clubmark. The partnership approach with Tyne & Wear Sport that the club has adopted in reaching this goal has set an example to other handball clubs across the country."

Handball is a team sport which involves two teams of seven players; it is played at an extremely high pace and is suitable for males, females and juniors of all levels. There are now approximately 19 million people playing the sport worldwide and it has been an official Olympic sport since 1936.

Schools rival to compete for the School Games Handball title

Laura Watson March 30, 2017

The first School Games handball competition in Tyne and Wear was a great success with 20 teams in total taking part.

Oxclose Community Academy won the U15's boys' competition and Churchill Community College won the U13's boys' competition. The U15's girls' competition winners were Biddick Academy and the U13's girls' competition winners were St Wilfrid's RC school. The competition was a culmination of qualifying rounds and was held at Temple Park Leisure Centre in South Shields. The winners will now progress to the regional qualifiers held in the next couple of months.

Claire Lee, School Games Co-ordinator at Tyne & Wear Sport said, "Handball is an up and coming sport in the UK and it was great to see so many young, talented people getting involved with the sport in our region. England Handball, Newcastle Vikings Handball Club and Sunderland Handball Club were a big help in running the event."

Students expressed their excitement of getting involved with a new sport through School Games and commented on how handball is a fast pace, energetic team sport.

Megan, Caitlin and Lucy from Churchill Community College said, "We love the fast paced energy in handball which makes the sport really fun to play."

The pupils from Churchill Community College also commented on the positivities they achieve from being part of a team in sport.

"What like most about playing sport is the team work that is produced. You can also relieve stress when playing sport and the feeling like you are part of a team is great. It's also nice to spend time with your friends too."

Many of the students at the handball competition were very talented and some even play for sports clubs outside of school including football, rugby and boxing.

Jordan and Connor from Oxclose Community Academy said, "We all play many other sports including football and boxing. We play for clubs outside of school including, Riverside Panthers Football Club, Leam Rangers Football Club and District Youth Boxing Club."

The pupils from Oxclose went onto say, "What enjoy the most about taking part in sport is keeping fit and having fun at the same time. We enjoy playing together as a team as we encourage and support each other on and off the field."

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club

Inspirational coach Marlen Slinning Goulty and next generation coach Sandra Christke were nominated by Andrea King at Newcastle Vikings Handball Club to receive the #PassOnYourPassion baton.

Andrea said she had nominated Marlen because: "Marlen founded Newcastle Vikings Handball Club in September 2012 and through her devotion to handball has driven the successful development of the club and the sport in Tyne & Wear and the North East region over the past five years from virtually nothing, including enabling the Vikings to become the first handball club in the country to achieve Clubmark recognition in 2015."

As the club's head coach she has led the development of both our senior men's and women's teams and been inspirational in our women's team's successes in particular, as well as working non-stop to encourage youngsters to play handball through her independent coaching in the region's schools, developing junior teams both within the club and now at county level having initiated county-wide handball schools events. Clearly a huge achievement in a relatively unknown sport and an area where handball has been little practiced before she came to the fore."

Marlen is passing her passion for coaching on to Sandra Christke, who has also been a member of the club since it was established. She has successfully captained the women's team through all of their four league seasons to date.

Andrea said: "Sandra has been keenly helping out with coaching the junior players both within the club and for the emerging Tyne & Wear County teams, Sandra would be an ideal candidate to support towards gaining her formal handball coaching qualifications."

We will now be working with both Marlen and Sandra to support them to achieve their goals in coaching and personal development.

Newcastle Vikings Handball Club hosted free family handball sessions on Wednesdays throughout September at Benfield Centre for Sporting Excellence. The sessions consisted of mixed activities from basic ball handling skills, fitness and playing the game of handball. Throughout these sessions, we had 11 children and 9 adults participating. The attendance was very good for handball, which is a minority sport in the area.

Head Coach at the club, Marlen, commented "It was great fun to get the parents involved together with the children. I think it worked very well, it was such a positive environment to coach in. Everyone enjoyed themselves and was tired at the end of the sessions. Also, I think by seeing parents participating, the children became more secure and wanted to challenge themselves when seeing their own parents giving it a go."

One parents who attended the family sessions praised the sessions, saying "Excellent session, great for the whole family to do an activity together. The children enjoyed scoring goals against their parents. The session actually helped to improve the children's skills."

Two children who took part said "It was fun to play handball with my daddy. I like to score goals at him" and "It's got a few more people involved and it's good for younger ones to learn a new sport that they haven't heard of before."

Maria sits on the Newcastle Vikings Handball Club board as the sponsorship officer, where she is very pro-active in getting new projects off the ground. Marlen, who created the club highlighted within her nomination how Maria "gives up a huge amount of her spare time for the benefit of the club and is excellent at creating collaborations with companies such as Decathlon UK and links with other community organisations". In addition to this, Marlen highlighted how Maria also helps to "organise, promote and run other club events throughout the year such as match days, tournaments, international women's day, beach sessions, walking handball and social gatherings".

Maria is seen as very enthusiastic in helping to coach the junior and mini teams and often takes the initiative to interact with parents and any new players coming along for the very first time. Marlen further described Maria as the "sunshine of our club" and commented on how she will "always meet you with a smile on her face and you will always feel included. She is full of energy and enthusiasm which she passes on to you. The 'blue and silver pom-poms' are never far away on match days and during family events, and you can hear her cheer for everyone".

Marlen completed her nomination by commenting on how Maria "makes everyone feel a part of the 'Vikings Handball Family'. The younger girls and boys have a fantastic role-model in her. She has only been a Viking for two years, but she shows that you can have fun and make new friends whilst also making a hugely positive contribution to the development and success of the club. I would like to say a big thank you to her!"

GCS & Marlen's Handball Coaching

23 April

GCS is proud to be partnering with Marlen Slinning from Marlen's Handball Coaching to ensure that delivery of the Global Sport ~ Global Learning Handball Program continues in England's North East.

Marlen, originally from Norway holds a combined Sport Sciences and Physical Education degree with focus on both Primary and Secondary Physical Education. She has always had a great passion for sporting activities and has 12 years of handball coaching experience. Marlen is also involved in national tutoring for Handball coaches and runs the Newcastle Vikings Handball Club.

The Global Sports ~ Global Learning Handball Program consists of 6 sessions. Each session includes 1 practical lesson and 1 theory lesson. After each practical handball lesson the group then participates in classroom activities whereby they record their experiences in the form of a sports coaching manual. The manual is a collection of their work which includes their wording of the rules and equipment required to play as well as detailed instructions for how to perform the skills. It also includes information about their school and their daily routines and lifestyle. This is then published and sent to a school in India where it is used to teach the Indian children how to play Handball. A letter/report full of pictures and photos is then sent back to the school from the children in India explaining how they used the manual. It also includes details of where they live and their culture. This relationship can continue post program.

Since 2010 the Global Sport ~ Global Learning program has been successfully delivered to over 60 schools and young offender institutes in England. The program is now currently being launched in Australia expanding the opportunities for schools to engage in global collaborations. For more information about how your school can get involved in the Global Sport ~ Global Learning Handball Program please contact Rick at rick@gcsprojects.org or +61 \(0\) 4589 33115.

Newcastle Vikings HC introduces handball to local cricket club and Tesco Extra

Newcastle Vikings HC introduces handball to local cricket club and demonstrate the sport to customers at Tesco Extra (and now they are introducing Walking Handball)

Handball in England is growing, but still relatively unknown here, so for the sport and the clubs to raise the profile and grow they have to develop partnerships and be innovative.

Newcastle Vikings HC is a dynamic club which is one of the clubs supported by Svend Elkjaer of SMN as part of England Handball's club support programme.

They have just run two enterprising initiatives, one with cricket and one with Tesco Extra

All Stars Cricket is a programme run by the ECB to provide boys and girls from 5-8 years old with 8 weeks of non-stop fun. The activity and game based programme is suitable for all skill levels, providing the children with the foundations to begin a lifelong love of physical activity and cricket while making friends in a safe and enjoyable.

As throwing a ball is part of both cricket and handball the great people at Newcastle Vikings decided to showcase their sport to local All Star participants.

Svend knows Russell Perry, Chair of Northumberland Cricket Board and who is also involved local, dynamic cricket club, Corbridge CC.

They met and it was agreed that the Vikings could take part in some of the All Star Cricket sessions at Corbridge, introducing the almost 100 5-8 year olds to handball.

The sessions were a great success and here is a post from Corbridge CC's Facebook page:

"...we had another fun filled night of All Stars. Thanks to the coaches from Newcastle Vikings Handball Club who brought their sport to Corbridge as the fielding station. The throwing, catching, jumping and running mirrored the work we all do in the field and provided much needed extra helpers. The Handball club are based in Benfield School and are keen to hear from local clubs running All Stars in their area.!

Almost 100 5-8 year olds trying handball in Northumberland

"It was really great linking up with the cricket community in the North East" said Marlen Slinning Goulty, Chairperson at Newcastle Vikings HC, "and we are really pleased that it has already been agreed that Northumberland Cricket Board will support a wider role out of the collaboration in 2020"

On a sunny Saturday the Vikings demonstrated handball to the large number of Tesco Extra customers as part of the Kingston Park store's Diabetes Awareness Day.

Tesco customers of all ages enjoyed Try Handball which is a version of the sport which uses smaller, softer balls and which can be enjoyed by beginners.

The Vikings have just received funding to set up a Walking Handball programme, aimed at the slighter older age group around Newcastle.

Walking handball is already popular in the Netherlands

So, for any of our smaller, less know sports. Go out there, Be innovative.

Talk to people across your community.

Be bold.

Student keen to bring handball to Sunderland

2 August

Released: Thursday 2nd August 2012

Sunderland University student Jack Woods has been inspired by Great Britain's Handball teams and is determined to set up a club at the University.

Great Britain are making their competitive Olympic debut at the Copper Box at London 2012 and despite neither the Men's or Women's teams managing to secure a victory yet, the sport is proving to be a popular choice for spectators and the media and Woods is keen to capitalise on this growing interest.

Woods, from South Shields, said: "I first discovered Handball when I went to Germany on holiday when I was 14. I was on a school trip and it looked amazing.

"I held an interest from there really, but there is nothing in the North East."

Undeterred, the 19 year old maintained an interest in the sport until a British Handball UK Tour back in May offered him the chance to try the sport.

The tour visited Eldon Square in Newcastle where Woods, who has his Handball coaching certificates, took part in a taster session.

After impressing the organisers, he was invited to train with Newcastle University and travelled with them to compete in a handball tournament in Eindhoven in June.

Woods said: "There were students from all over the country: Loughborough, Lincoln, Brighton and Newcastle and we took four teams including a women's team.

"It was a huge tournament, the sport is massive in Europe. People I spoke to didn't even know that Britain had a team and they seemed surprised by that."

Woods is perplexed as to why Handball isn't more popular in the UK but believes that the Olympics is the perfect opportunity to build interest and participation in the sport.

"Handball is such a good sport but it needs exposure and the Olympics is perfect for that so the time is now," said Woods.

"I don't understand why it's not bigger here – its definitely more continental but I don't know why it hasn't made it over the channel.

"Maybe as an island we are excluded as to what goes on in mainland Europe where there are competitive league and the opportunity to play more teams?"

After his experience in Eindhoven, Woods has wasted no time in looking to establish a club at the University.

Sunderland University are now affiliated with the Association of British Universities Handball Clubs (ABUH) and Woods has a list of over twenty names of interested people who want to get involved.

"If you look at GB team, four years ago they didn't have a team and now they are in the Olympics," said Woods.

"Newcastle University are desperate for some local competition. This year I want to enter a team in as many competitions as we can and have friendly matches.

"I know there is interest around the country from the students I met in Eindhoven and hopefully by 2013 we can establish a BUCS Handball league. That's the goal.

"I'd encourage anyone looking for a new and interesting sport to get involved. It's a really fast paced game, really good fun. I'm glad its getting some exposure at the Games and I just hope I can build on that, and the sport in this country can build on that after the Games."

Woods hoping London 2012 will boost the popularity of Handball at BUCS level

Sunderland University's Handball teams are hoping that the London 2012 Olympic games will encourage more people to become involved in the sport.

At the Freshers Fayre, over 100 students signed up to take part in Handball, leaving the University with two men's teams and potentially the only women's team in the North East.

At the 2012 Olympic Games neither of the GB teams picked up a victory. However, Jack Woods, President of the University team, is confident that with the talent at his disposal this will not be repeated for Sunderland at British Universities and College Sport (BUCS) level.

"The Olympics has really showcased what Handball actually is," said Woods. "Students have been saying 'I saw it at the Games and I needed to play it', that's the legacy of the Games."

He added: "I have seen quite a few guys who have real potential to go somewhere in this sport, and that's just from looking at their ability in the taster sessions, with some coaching they could go pretty far".

Although no fixtures have currently been arranged for the Handball team, Woods has connections at Universities nationwide, with future fixtures against Loughborough, Bangor and Leeds a distinct possibility.

Talks are currently underway with representatives from both Northumbria and Newcastle Universities, to arrange future friendly matches.

In addition to friendly games, the establishment of a Northern Tournament is collaboratively underway and is planned to take place in early November, at CitySpace.

Students interested in getting involved with Handball should email Jack Woods at: jackfranciswoods@yahoo.co.uk and training sessions are held at CitySpace at 6-8 every Sunday evening.

Handball on the rise in Sunderland

University of Sunderland Handball captain Jack Woods believes the London 2012 Games has had a positive effect on the sport. Jack also goes on to tell us about his hopes for handball at the University.

Sunderland Handball Club suffer consecutive defeats in tournament debut

The only way is up for Sunderland Handball Club after they suffered defeats to both Northumbria and Newcastle Universities in the Northern Tournament at Eldon Leisure on Sunday.

In the first ever game for Sunderland HC, they were comfortably beaten by an experienced Northumbria side 29-15.

However, in the second and final match of the tournament Sunderland were more convincing, only losing by nine points to a very impressive Newcastle team, 19-10.

Captain Jack Woods knew that both games against seasoned teams would be difficult and said his side had to be realistic in their expectations from their opening games.

He said: "Against Northumbria we were all over the place, but that's acceptable because it was the first game more than half the guys had played.

"After the game I sat them down and they really took what I had to say on board. In the second game we held off Newcastle for a long time and the scoreline was acceptable.

"I'm proud of the guys, especially in the last game; losing by less than 10 points to Newcastle is progress as they are a really strong team."

Woods highlighted the performance of James Errington in goal as the best of the day, making clear that Errington's quality was one of the key factors that kept Sunderland in the second game.

Sunderland HC will be looking for their first competitive win in yet to be confirmed future friendly matches, likely to be played at CitySpace.

Give it a go Handball session to be held at CitySpace

The University of Sunderland Handball team are hosting a free session on Saturday to boost the popularity of the sport in the North East.

The event will take place in the main hall of CitySpace between 3-5 pm and will be hosted by the Newcastle Vikings Handball Club, Gateshead Handball Club and the University of Sunderland Handball team.

A showcase exhibition match will be played as a select team of Vikings and Gateshead players face the university side to offer a taste of a live Handball game.

President of the University Handball team Jack Woods is looking for more players to bolster the squad, with the Handball players offering coaching after the match in the hope that people will turn up to training the week after and join the university team.

"Handball is an extremely fast paced and thrilling game and we here at the club really want to showcase what the sport has to offer people," said Woods.

"There's still an Olympic buzz about the sport and I encourage anyone interested to come down and try it."

The university also hope to get enough female's down to CitySpace on Saturday to put on a mini women's game.

Woods added: "The session is open to everyone, students and members of the public, and it's a great opportunity for people to come and enjoy one of Europe's most popular sports."

One of the reasons that the university team have struggled to get enough players signed on in recent years is that there hasn't been a Handball league for them to compete in, but now plans are being put in place to form a North East league.

University of Sunderland Sports and Activities officer, Danielle Farrell, believes the introduction of a league will help generate interest in the sport.

Danielle said: "It is hard to get enough players to sign on because there is not a league for them to play in at the moment so we have a very small squad.

"We have a format for a league down on paper so hopefully it will be up and running soon."

As well as the promise of a new league, it is hoped that the showpiece event on Saturday will inspire people to get involved in the sport, and Danielle believes that Handball offers a great variation on most other sports.

She added: "I think people should try Handball because it is a really really fun and energetic game, to watch and play. You are indoors so it can be played all year round and it just gives you a bit of variety to play a different sport."

Handball: “More things to come”, says captain Woods

10 February

University of Sunderland Handball captain Jack Woods thinks that the sport can grow in the North East following an exhibition day against a Newcastle side at CitySpace.

Sunderland lost 15-9 against a men's side comprising of Newcastle Vikings and Gateshead, and then lost 11-9 to the Viking's women's side, but Woods said: “This, hopefully, is the springboard for more things to come.”

There hasn't been a local league for Sunderland to join this year, meaning the team has been restricted to merely training sessions but there are high hopes for Handball, which has grown in popularity since the London 2012 Olympics.

As well as the two exhibition matches, there was also a 'give it a go' session where anyone could come on to the court and play the game as the University seeks to get more people involved in the sport.

Woods said: “Handball at the university is a really new thing. It's a new club this year; I think we're the newest sports society (at University of Sunderland).

“We're trying to get a local league together, especially with the guys from Newcastle Vikings. They'll be a league for us to play in and opportunities for people to play so it isn't just training, it'll be games as well.”

The Vikings were set up in September 2012 and, along with Gateshead and a university team from Newcastle, are keen to join a league and star player Charlie Goulty said that they wanted to capitalise on the popularity of Handball from London 2012..

Goulty said: “With the interest that's been generated from the Olympics, that's been the idea, to really try and promote the sport.

“The point of today was to really start the ball rolling in terms of competition, that was one of the main goals: to get a competitive league going in the North East.”

Sunderland were largely outclassed in the opening game although did get more into it as the tie wore on, and they matched the women's team throughout the second game. They improved defensively as Woods' organisational skills came into play, and they put together some fluent attacking play too.

Woods said of the performances: “I think we did really well. We played the girls in the second game but even the Vikings say that their girl's team are their strongest team.

“I'm really quite proud of the guys. Two of them had never played handball before, and the rest of the team had only played two competitive games.

“It's really good for the team, they've really enjoyed it and it's been a real big morale boost that they've held the score quite low.”

The Handball team trains from 6-8pm every Sunday for men and women at CitySpace, and Woods added of the sport: “It's a really good workout, it's a very physical game, it's really fast and it's really fun to play.”

23 October

Sunderland University's handball coach is optimistic about his team's prospects for this year.

Jack Woods has long been interested in handball, a sport with a large following in mainland Europe but not in the UK.

However, the success of London 2012 provided a springboard for this “new” sport and Woods, part of the GB students' side, chose to set up a team for the University.

Last year, lacking experience, the team struggled in their first two tournaments, but some continental help drastically improved performances.

“We had a few Germans playing and we were suddenly unstoppable,” Woods recalls. “Instead of losing, we weren't even letting teams score this time.”

But the nature of University limits the lifespan for players, as proven with this year's all-new line-up.

“This year we've got three Cypriots, two Greeks and a Polish guy as well,” Woods said of his cosmopolitan team.

“We've been blessed because finding a good pivot player is extremely hard, yet there's someone here who has played pivot for six years. His job is to create gaps so your players can have free shots on goal.”

Woods, with his Level 1 coaching badge, knows he needs to get his team toughened up for this contact sport, adding: “I want them prepared for what they're going to feel.

“In a handball game, there'll be people throwing you and clattering you – I've broken my jaw twice! I play American Football for the University and it hurts less. In handball there's no pads, it's a very physical game.”

Coaching takes place at CitySpace on Sunday evenings but Sunderland isn't participating in a BUCS (British Universities & Colleges Sport) handball league, forcing Woods into using his contacts to arrange matches. “A lot of players on my GB students' side run the handball programmes at Universities like Bangor, Loughborough, Bath, Leeds and Sheffield Hallam, so we've got options.

“Nationals are in February too, if we can get ourselves there. But we won't have a match for at least six weeks.”

In the meantime Woods, as player-coach, has to teach a whole new sport to many of his teammates. The London legacy lives on.

Farringdon girls eye national handball glory

Farringdon Community Academy's Year 10 girls are aiming for glory this weekend – after reaching the National Handball Championships.

The team, made up of Year 9 and 10 pupils, are off to the University of Worcester for their big day, having won the Sunderland and Northern regional qualifiers.

The Farringdon girls have been given the ideal build-up, with coaching from the Newcastle Vikings handball club to hone their skills further.

Megan Elliott, Tiegan Mason, Terri Gilmour, Emily Herron, Sarah Blackhall, Issy Auty, Alice Jewitt, Amelia Agnew, Juliet Humphrey and Katy Hutchinson will represent Farringdon, whose head teacher, Howard Kemp, said: "We are delighted that our students have qualified for the National Handball Finals.

"This represents the culmination of a lot of hard work from staff and students alike.

"Handball really took off at Farringdon following the 2012 Olympic games and is part of our PE syllabus in Key Stage 3. I know that our girls will do the school, the city and the region proud – good luck!

"Alice Jewitt will not travel south with the squad today, as she is taking part in an England Karate training session, but she will head to Worcester in time for the quest for national success.

Lastly, to our newest sport as handball went to their final tournament of the year. This is still not a BUCS sport but we believe it will be in the not too distant future. We managed to make it through the group stages in Birmingham beating MMU 8-2 and Liverpool John Moores 9-3 but lost to Loughborough 8-6. We eventually lost out in the last sixteen going down to Nottingham 9-4 but we look to be ready for the sport's change of status.

Durham Handball Put to the Test

(6 December 2015)

The qualifying rounds of the ABUHC Championship for the north region was the first test for the DU Olympic Handball Club. Never have any of the teams played together against any opposition, so naturally the whole team was both nervous and excited to see how they would play together.

The Mens A Team met one of the stronger teams in their first match, and played solid in defence and attack. Unfortunately, already half-way through their first match, the GB national player Niall Flanagan popped his shoulder after being tackled from two of Lancasters players. However, regardless of the injury, Durham kept on fighting to the end with a good result.

The momentum built up in the first game was kept throughout all the mens A team matches, meaning Durham secured 5 wins.

The Womens Team started off in the same manner, beating Loughborough with two goals. After a loss against Lancaster, the girls were ready to take on Dundee to go home with the victory. Due to the tournament running one hour late the Durham to forfeit the match after only two minutes.

Altogether it was a successful weekend for Durham handball who will look to push on from here. Next up the Mens A team will go to the ABUHC Finals in March, the Womens Team is still questionable (qualifications and fixtures are yet to be realised). The DUOHC will also participate in a North East Friendly cup with York- and Newcastle Handball Clubs in December, January and February.

Results:

Mens A Team - 5 Wins:

Durham vs Lancaster (12 - 7)
Durham vs. Bangor II (10 - 2)
Durham vs. MMU Cheshire (11 - 1)
Durham vs. Loughborough II (11 - 1)
Durham vs. Liverpool (11 - 8)

Womens A Team - 1 Win, 2 Loss (one forfeit):

Durham vs. Loughborough II (5 - 3)
Durham vs. Lancaster (2 - 6)
Durham vs. Dundee (1 - 0) - Forfeit
